JEALOUSY CAUSE OF WIFE KILLING WOMAN AND SELF

Estranged Husband Tells of Quarrels With Mrs. Jean Miller Because of Friendship With Victim.

INQUEST VERDICT OF HOMICIDE, SUICIDE

Real Estate Man Says He Played Bridge and Golf With Mrs. Grace Delaney After Separation.

Jealousy over the friendship of her estranged husband for a young woman was clearly disclosed today by the investigation of the Coroner and University City police as investigating Mrs. Jean Miller to shoot and kill her rival, Mrs. Grace S. Delaney, and then to end her own life yesterday.

The body of Mrs. Delaney, attractive red-haired divorcee, was found at 12:10 p. m. yesterday in the Miller apartment at 7505 Pershing avenue by 11-year-old Ann Miller, who had just come home from school for lunch. Apparently Mrs. Miller was then in another room in the apartment, because when her husband, Elliott S. Miller, president of the Real Estate Management Co., entered the place shortly before 2 o'clock, he found the bodies of his wife and Mrs. Delaney lying together in the living room.

Mrs. Miller was 49 years old, and had been divorced when she married Miller in 1922. Miller is 40 years old; Mrs. Delaney was 33, and had divorced her first husband, Thomas Delaney, about a year ago.

At the inquest today a verdict of homicide and suicide was returned. From the evidence it appeared likely that Mrs. Delaney went to the Miller home in response to a telephone call from Mrs. Miller, which Mrs. Delaney received at her apartment yesterday morning.

Statement by Miller. In a statement to Coroner Tierney amplifying an earlier statement to Chief of Police Ward of University City, Miller said that he and his wife separated by agreement in June 1933, and that he met Mrs. Delaney after that time. He denied that his friendship for Mrs. Delaney, who lived in the Carleton Apartments at 4616 Lindell boulevard, had anything to do with the separation.

"My wife and I were agreeable to the separation at the time—both of us," he said. "It was for the sake of the child. We couldn't get along together. Mrs. Miller and her daughter made a trip to Virginia together after the separation and I stayed in the apartment until shortly before the return, when I moved out."

"After she returned, however, she had a change of mind which increased as time went on, and she wanted me back. I adored the child and so did she."

"As time went on, I played bridge with other women and men, and played golf with men, as well as with women. Some time this summer she (Mrs. Miller) learned I was playing golf with Mrs. Delaney."

Wife Learned of Golf Games. Miller indicated his wife had found out about them playing golf together through the register of a club where the names of himself and Mrs. Delaney were signed as playing on the course together.

"Since then," he continued, "she had talked to me several times. I assured her there was nothing between us (Miller and Mrs. Delaney) that should cause her any concern, but her mental and nervous condition was such that you could not discuss anything with her pertaining to me."

"Her story was that the child needed her dad and that I should come home. Mrs. Miller had suggested that she talk to Mrs. Delaney in person. I said there was no more reason to talk to her than to other people I played bridge with and with whom I have spent some time. Mrs. Delaney's name, however, was the only one her mind dwelled on."

Yes, Miller replied, "I can think of no other possibility." Miller said he had no idea where Mrs. Miller got the revolver, that he had not had a weapon around the house for years. Asked if his wife ever had threatened him, he replied that she had not, but added:

There were times when I thought it possible she was going to dispose of herself. She indicated it was the only thing she knew of doing. On several occasions...

PLANES AND SHIPS HUNT MISSING PACIFIC FLYERS

No Trace of Ulm and Two Others, Who Were Forced Down Near Hawaii on Way
From U. S. to Australia.

By the Associated Press.

HONOLULU, Dec. 5.—Through the air and on the water, army, navy and private searchers widened the hunt today for Flight Lieut. Charles T. P. Ulm of Australia and two companions whose trans-Pacific plane was forced down on the ocean yesterday.

Every hour brought new fear that the Star of Australia, a land plane, had sunk with its three passengers when the gasoline supply gave out.

An all-night cruise by 23 naval craft did not disclose a trace of the plane in which Ulm, Co-Pilot George M. Littlejohn and Navigator-Radio Operator J. L. Skilling took off from Oakland, Cal., Monday for Honolulu on a contemplated flight to Australia. The three were attempting to chart a commercial trans-Pacific flying route.

Exact Location Not Known. The exact location of the flyers was not known. SOS messages flashed from the plane yesterday indicated it came down within 200 miles of Oahu, but Ulm said he was off his course and frantically sought bearings.

Twenty-four naval seaplanes and three army planes took off today to search an area within 300 miles of the archipelago.

They were aided by three Army amphibian planes which were ordered to go to Kauai, the northernmost Hawaiian island; Hawaii, the southernmost island, and Oahu in the center of the area being covered.

Meanwhile, the search went forward by surface craft. The Navy, private boats and many Japanese fishing sampans en route to and from the fishing grounds. The theory grew among naval officers that Ulm's plane had descended short of Oahu and to the northeast.

Messages From Planes. The flyers' first warning that they were in danger came at 7:30 a. m. yesterday.

"We have very little gasoline left," Skilling said.

Soon followed another message that the plane was off its course. Then: "Going down into sea now. Plane will float. We are turning into wind. Come pick us up."

But a few moments later: "On water now. S O S."

This flash, shortly after 9 a. m., signaled the start of the search.

Several pupils interviewed members of the Board of Education and sought a hearing for the three teachers, Miss Ruth Forth, Mrs. Marjorie Curtin and Miss Elizabeth Delisle.

Students, the charges said, drank while the teachers looked on and had wine. It was said action followed protests by parents of one of the pupils.

The suspended teachers and some of the pupils said the board acted unfairly in suspending them without a hearing. All are veteran teachers and had good records.

The teachers said the play cast had gone to the roadhouse, owned by Frank Birk, father of Harry Birk, member of the cast, to meet the parents, and wine was served in a spirit of hospitality.

GOODRICH AND FIRESTONE SUE TO STOP PLANT ELECTIONS

Rubber Firms Ask Court to Set Aside Order of Labor Board.

CINCINNATI, O., Dec. 5.—Petitions asking that an order of the National Labor Relations Board for elections in their plants be reviewed and set aside were filed in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals yesterday by the B. F. Goodrich Co. and the Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. of Akron.

The board had ordered the elections to be held next Friday to decide whether employees of the two concerns desired representation in negotiations with the employers through internal unions or the United Rubber Workers' Federal Labor Union.

The filing of the petitions automatically stays the board's order. Petitions of both companies said the order of the board deprived the petitioners of property without due process of law and denied them their full rights to enter into contract with their employees, individually or collectively.

WARNING REDUCED LOSS OF LIFE IN EARTHQUAKE

Light Shocks Preceded Heavy Tremor That Damaged Honduras Towns.

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras, Dec. 5.—Heavy loss of life was averted in earthquakes in Honduras Monday and Tuesday, dispatches indicate, because three light shocks preceded the heaviest shock.

Inhabitants of many small towns destroyed or badly damaged by the major shocks were forewarned, and ran into the wide streets and parks to pray in the open air while their homes fell.

Aside from the three towns in Central Honduras having a total population of 6500, which are reported to have been virtually destroyed, the small villages in the Merendon Mountain chain along the Guatemalan border appeared to have suffered greatest damage.

Communications systems were badly damaged and details of the disaster were brought to the larger towns by men on horseback, whence they were relayed to the capital. A hurricane caused the loss of 1000 lives in Honduras last July.

SON OF JUDGE SILENT ON WHY HE KILLED YOUTH

Tulsa Police Investigating Rumors of Unlawful Enterprises by Prisoner and Associates.

20 YOUNG MEN ARE QUESTIONED

Meanwhile, Philip Kennamer, Who Shot John F. Gorrell Jr., Has Private Room in Jail.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

TULSA, Ok., Dec. 5.—Philip Kennamer, 19-year-old son of Federal Judge Franklin E. Kennamer, sat in his comfortably furnished room in the Tulsa County jail, where 30 other prisoners sentenced by his father were serving terms in cells, while police and county officials sought to find among numerous conflicting stories the motive for his killing on Thanksgiving night of John F. Gorrell Jr., his erstwhile friend and son of a socially prominent physician here.

Police seemed puzzled by the situation created by Kennamer who surrendered last Saturday, admitting the killing but steadfastly refusing to make any statement relating to motive, except to plead self-defense.

"A Chinese murder case," one detective called it. "An upside down case. We've got the killer and he admits it. But that's about all we know about it so far."

Awaiting Return of Oil Man. Authorities are convinced, however, that some further light will be thrown on the case with the return from New York of H. F. Wilcox Jr., president of the Wilcox Oil & Gas Co., his 17-year-old son H. F. Wilcox Jr., and his attractive daughter, Miss Virginia Wilcox, 19.

One story police are investigating alleged a plot by Gorrell to extort money from Wilcox by threatening his daughter. After police had questioned members of the Wilcox family Saturday, they left Tulsa and were found yesterday in New York where Wilcox said they had gone on a hopping trip and would return Sunday.

Contrary to opinion based on the statements of Floyd J. Huff, Kansas City airplane pilot, who brought Kennamer to Tulsa by automobile a week before the killing, Wilcox denied that Kennamer was infatuated with his daughter, and on occasion to interest himself in his family affairs. Although young Wilcox was an occasional associate, the father said, his daughter had gone out in Kennamer's company few times.

Pending return of the Wilcoxes for further questioning, police were kept busy investigating an apparently endless series of rumors relating to unlawful enterprises of Kennamer, Gorrell and other children of oil-rich Tulsa families who had been their associates.

Numerous Fantastic Tales. After more than 20 nervous youths of high school age had been questioned by County Attorney Holly Anderson, the prosecutor said he had learned little of value in developing his case against Kennamer, although he had heard numerous fantastic tales which challenged his imagination.

Detectives handled the case with unusual caution. At homes in the fashionable residential district where investigation led them, they walked gently on Oriental rugs and spoke apologetically to youths who bore names to be seen on business houses as one passes down the principal streets.

Gorrell's body, in the driver's seat of his automobile, parked on the roadway of a Tulsa subdivision, was found shortly before midnight. He had been shot through the head twice. Sgt. Henry Maddox, city criminologist and ballistics expert, said the bullets had been fired from the 22-caliber revolver found in a holster on the seat beside the body.

The revolver, which had been borrowed by Gorrell from a friend in Kansas City, contained two exploded cartridges.

Story Told by Hubb. On learning of Gorrell's murder, Huff related to Kansas City police threats he said Kennamer made against Gorrell during their drive to Tulsa a week before. At the time, Huff said, he attached no significance to them since Kennamer had been drinking.

Huff said Kennamer and Gorrell sought to rent his airplane at Fairfax Airport in Kansas City but that he declined since the weather was unsuitable for flying. Gorrell was a licensed pilot. On learning that Kennamer wished to come to Tulsa, Huff agreed to drive here in his automobile.

During the ride, Huff asserted...

WIDOW DESCRIBES KILLING OF NELSON BY FEDERAL MEN

Story as Related by Her Sister Says Wounded
Outlaw Died in House Near Chicago.

BODY THEN TAKEN TO NILES CENTER

Mrs. Helen Gillis Relates
She and Unidentified
There.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Dec. 5.—Mrs. Juliette Fitzsimmons, sister of George ("Baby Face") Nelson, today revealed the story of his killing by Federal agents, as she said, it was told to her by his widow, 25-year-old Mrs. Helen Gillis shortly before Mrs. Gillis was taken into custody by Federal men on Thanksgiving day.

Mrs. Gillis (Nelson's real name was Gillis) said that she, Nelson and another man were in a house near Lake Geneva, Wis., for 10 days until Federal men raided it last Tuesday. They fled through a back door.

Speeding in an automobile toward Chicago and a widespread net laid by Federal agents for their capture, the fugitives engaged in a brisk fight with one pair of agents, without injury to either party.

Mrs. Fitzsimmons quoted Mrs. Gillis as saying: "The Federal men fired on us as we passed them."

Fight With Hollis and Cowley. A short time later they met another Government car, manned by Herman E. Hollis and Samuel P. Cowley, near Barrington. Mrs. Gillis' description of what happened then agrees with previous accounts. She insisted, however, that she took no part in the firing.

The Federal men's fire disabled Nelson's automobile, she said. Nelson, his wife and the unidentified man then abandoned their car and faced the Federal men.

There, Mrs. Fitzsimmons quoted Mrs. Gillis as saying:

"Les ('Baby Face') hollered for me to duck. I jumped in a ditch and kept my head down. I could see Les, though, firing at the Federal men who were trying to kill him."

"Then I saw Les jump up and grab his side. I seemed to know then that it was all over. Then the firing stopped."

Mrs. Gillis said she then saw either her husband or the other man, she didn't know which one, go over to make sure that Hollis and Cowley were out of the fight. She told her sister-in-law:

"Afterwards when I watched Les I knew he was done for."

Three Evade Other Officers. Mrs. Gillis said she knew there was no use calling a doctor.

The three successfully evaded other officers who were searching the countryside and made their way to a house "somewhere near Chicago." There they stripped Nelson of his clothing. Mrs. Gillis told Mrs. Fitzsimmons:

"All three of us knew that Les was dying, but there was nothing we could do."

Mrs. Gillis said it was 7:35 that evening when Nelson died. All that night the young widow and the other man kept vigil.

Finally dawn broke and, Mrs. Gillis said, she and the other man left.

"We carried Les' body to the car to find some place to put it. I had no idea where to go."

"We drove out to Niles Center. We neared a cemetery and I decided that was the best place to leave Les' body. We didn't put his body in a ditch. We put it alongside the road."

Report That Hamilton Is Held. John Hamilton of the Dillinger gang is under arrest, according to one of several rumors that cropped up today following the disclosure that Mrs. Gillis was in the custody of Federal agents. Government agents seeking Hamilton as the accomplice of Nelson in the killing of Agents Hollis and Cowley, refused to comment.

Secrecy likewise was maintained concerning circumstances of Mrs. Gillis' arrest in Chicago. Thanksgiving night. One published account today said she surrendered voluntarily after telephoning Federal agents from the home of a sister-in-law.

Mrs. Gillis' detention was made until yesterday gave strength to a suggestion in unofficial circles that Hamilton may already be in custody.

H. M. Clegg of the Department of Justice said Nelson had been in a hideout near Lake Geneva, Wis., just before the fatal shooting.

THREE MEN PUT IN CHAINS ON STREET IN KENTUCKY TOWN

Crowd Gathers Around Posts; Prisoners Refused to Work Out Fines for Drunkenness.

PAINTSVILLE, Ky., Dec. 5.—In a scene reminiscent of other days, three men who refused to work out fines imposed for drunkenness were chained to power line poles on Main street here today.

Crowds gathered to see Town Marshal Allen bind the men with log chains and attach two 25-pound balls and lock them with padlocks on separate posts on three corners. Allen said he acted on orders of Police Judge R. A. Patrick, who said later that the three would stay there, except at night, until they agreed to work out their fines.

The men chained were James Price, 25 years old; William Dills, 22, and Oscar (Blackie) Pelphrey, 22.

He was arrested on his farm by a Royal Canadian Mounted policeman who had spent two years trailing him. He is charged with conspiring to defraud the Canadian Government by falsely obtaining reparations for a sailing vessel supposedly torpedoed by a German submarine during the war.

The vessel was the three-master Gyseum Queen, of which Hatfield was owner. It sank at a disputed distance off the Irish coast in July, 1915, and in 1930 the skipper applied to the Canadian Government for reparations.

On his statement that the ship had been torpedoed, Hatfield was awarded $71,276. His counsel in prosecuting the claim was Senator Hance J. Logan of Nova Scotia.

Subsequently the Government said that the vessel had not been torpedoed, but had gone down in a storm. It also brought charges that Hatfield had conspired with Logan in presenting the allegedly false claim, and that the award had been divided between them.

The Crown sought to recover from the two men, but Hatfield was not to be found. Logan has denied he knew the evidence to be false, and said he received only nominal counsel fees.

FOUR COMPANIES INCREASE GASOLINE PRICES TWO CENTS

Shell, Standard, Sinclair and Lubrite in City Is 12, 13 and 15; Half Cent Lower in County.

A two-cent increase in the retail price of gasoline was announced today by the Standard Oil Co., Shell Petroleum Corporation, Sinclair Refining Co., and the Lubrite Refining Co. New prices of the three grades will be 12, 13, and 15 cents in St. Louis and a half cent lower in St. Louis County, due to lower municipal tax.

In the city taxes total four cents per gallon: One cent city, one cent Federal, and two cents State. Most county municipalities have a half-cent city tax and prices are equalized in unincorporated areas.

ROOSEVELT DOING WELL, BUT—SAYS N. A. M. HEAD

If Business Is to Recover It Must Know "Direction in Which Government Is Heading," Manufacturers' Congress Is Told.

NRA "IS AT FORK OF THE ROAD"

Self-Government by Private Enterprise, Subject Only to Federal Control of Abuses the One to Take, Speaker Declares.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—C. L. Bardo, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, in a speech today, opened the two-day Congress of American Industry.

"Industry's prompt co-operation with Government," he said, "has been whole-hearted. Industry will continue to co-operate to restore sound economic conditions and to place the millions now idle back to work in private enterprise at the earliest practical date."

The congress, made up of leaders of industry, met to consider a proposed platform for recovery, written by a committee of industrialists and approved tentatively by the industrial council in a meeting preliminary to that of the congress. The Congress of Industry is said to represent more than 70,000 manufacturers employing most of the industrial workers in the United States.

The platform is designed, said Bardo in his address to the congress, to permit constructive co-operation of our own and other industrial organizations in producing a national solidified industrial opinion involving further co-operation with Government, agriculture, labor, Congress and the states in developing a sound national industrial economy."

Of the NRA he said: "We must correct the evil without destroying the good." Saying the NRA "is at a fork in the road," Bardo continued:

"One branch of that road tends toward more and more interference by Federal Government with private enterprise; encourages more restraint, paternalism and bureaucracy and tends further to unsettle the confidence of business capital. It is definitely a condemnation of Americanism. The other branch leads toward self-government by private enterprise subject only to Government control of abuses, and suggests the use of co-operative individualism as a basic principle in our recovery program."

"More Definite Ideals." President Roosevelt, Bardo said, "has met grave conditions with courage and determination." But, "if business is to get on its feet," he declared "it must have more definite ideas as to the direction in which Government is heading and some assurance that the charted course leads toward safe shores."

"We must have an end of the era of suspicion and come into the era of confidence. National prosperity will never be found in the atmosphere of business vilification, distrust of wealth, manufactured class antagonism and jeopardized initiative."

"We welcome the realistic recognition by voices high in administration councils that recovery is paramount and that sound co-operation of private industry is essential to that accomplishment. With recognition of these principles, the way is cleared for steady progress toward recovery."

A committee of the National Association of Manufacturers proposed today that compulsory unemployment insurance for both public and private employees be made a plank in the recovery platform.

Sentimental Thinkers. A policy of vigorous opposition to Government competition with private business was affirmed yesterday by the council group of the National Association of Manufacturers.

Dr. A. P. Haake of Chicago, managing director of the National Association of Furniture Manufacturers, in a speech before the council group drew the line sharply between private management and Government management of business.

"We have made errors, and we shall make more," he said. "But I would far rather trust the fate of our nation and our future to what"

LABOR BOARD BACKS UP ON GUILD RULING

Reopens San Francisco
Call-Bulletin Case After Ordering Paper to Reinstate Employee.

WORKERS' GROUP QUITS HEARING

President Heywood Brown Says "NRA Has Allowed Itself to Be Terrified By Publishers."

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—The National Labor Relations Board last night temporarily, at least, set aside its decision ordering the San Francisco Call-Bulletin to reinstate Dean S. Jennings, a rewrite man, who alleged he was forced to resign because of American Newspaper Guild activity.

And today, charging the NRA had been "terrified by the publishers," spokesmen for the Guild withdrew in a body from an NRA hearing on proposed editorial wages and hours. The Guild representatives criticized the Labor Board for reopening the case of Jennings. The board had explained it had ordered the reopening at the request of Blackwell Smith, acting general counsel for NRA.

Threat of Prosecution.
The Labor Board announced Monday that unless the paper, a William Randolph Hearst interest, reinstated Jennings within 10 days it would be cited to the NRA Compliance Division and to the Justice Department.

"At the request of the acting general counsel for the National Recovery Administration, the National Labor Relations Board has consented to reopen the San Francisco Call-Bulletin case in order to afford the NRA further opportunity to present the circumstances connected with the adoption of the newspaper code, and of rearguing the questions involved in the decision of the case," said the board last night.

"A date for such argument and presentation will shortly be announced by the National Labor Relations Board."

Counsel for Publishers.
Eliash Hanson, counsel for the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, taking the floor after the guild group had withdrawn, said that had not NRA taken the action it did in the Jennings case it would "have violated the code and breached a solemn obligation entered into between the newspaper publishing business and the President of the United States."

Hanson contended that at no time had the Call-Bulletin refused to go before the Newspaper Industrial Board with the Jennings case, and he said this body was the one having jurisdiction. Jennings had sought a re-employment order, saying he was forced to resign for guild activities. Hanson argued that Jennings had no right to base a claim on code privileges and then not follow the procedure prescribed.

Freedom of Press Dispute.
Referring to controversy over freedom of the press during writing of the newspaper code, Hanson said, "I am amazed that newspaper writers appear before you and attack that great heritage coming down from their forefathers." He said the newspaper code specifically provided that no publisher must accept its provisions unless he wanted.

"In my opinion," Hanson said, "the Labor Board decision was a violent, absolutely deliberate disrespect of that sacred provision in this code."

Hanson said the reason the wage and hour controversy had not been disposed of sooner was due to the "procrastination and sabotage" by leaders of the Guild, who repeatedly appeared without any program. He said also that the Guild leaders were "thoroughly disloyal" both to their own membership and to employers. At the direction of Jack Tate, NRA presiding official, Hanson's later remark was struck from the record.

Statement by Brown.
Heywood Brown, president of the Guild, made a statement when the hearing opened. Brown said that behind the figure of Smith (NRA counsel) "we see the figure of Donald Richberg."
"We know that he conferred long and earnestly with the National Labor Relations Board yesterday afternoon," Brown said. "We know because we saw him. As long as the corridors of Mr. Richberg are filled with mysterious, high-pressure representatives of the publishers we feel that we belong elsewhere."

"When and if NRA purges itself we will return. We charge definitely that on this occasion and on several former ones NRA has allowed itself to be terrified by the publishers."
Press Association Witness.
After Brown read his statements, Morris Watson, chairman of the Press Association Committee of the Guild, said he had intended to present evidence and argument "to show that the employees of this industry have been treated as outcasts and left without protection because no Government agency had the courage to bring them into any kind of a code."

"The National Committee which I represent," Watson said, "has come to the conclusion over night, however, that in view of NRA's surprising action toward the Labor Board's decision in the Jennings case, coupled with the fact that the newspaper code is apparently a sham to cover special privilege for publishers, there is nothing to be gained for Press Association employees in such codification."

"I withdraw my appearance therefore, to hold for a better time a proposal that press associations brought into a genuine code that does not accord them the special privilege which is now being given to publishers."

Two Weeks' Adjournment.
Tate told Brown he did not consider his statement pertinent to the wage and hour schedule for which the hearing was called. "We will adjourn for two weeks," Tate said. "During that time the Guild may file such information as it desires."

"For the present, we will stand on our statement," Brown replied as he led his group from the hearing room.

Also withdrawing with the Guild group was Paul Frederick of New York, who was the special labor advisor on the hearing. He said he would withdraw until "NRA's impartiality is established."

Statement by Hearst Man.
A statement by John Francis Neylan, chief counsel for the Hearst newspapers, issued here after announcement of the board's decision to suspend the order, said of the case:

"It was designed to oust the Newspaper Industrial Board, composed of equal representation of employers and employees, and to seize the overlordship of the press of the United States for three obscure appointed politicians."

"Legally the decision was not only unsound, it represented petty petting at its worst."

"Morally it glorifies an assumed betrayal of trust."

"In essence it was a stupid insult to the President of the United States and his personal representatives who had induced the publishers to sign a code."

Hanson said the reason the wage and hour controversy had not been disposed of sooner was due to the "procrastination and sabotage" by leaders of the Guild, who repeatedly appeared without any program. He said also that the Guild leaders were "thoroughly disloyal" both to their own membership and to employers. At the direction of Jack Tate, NRA presiding official, Hanson's later remark was struck from the record.

Statement by Brown.
Heywood Brown, president of the Guild, made a statement when the hearing opened. Brown said that behind the figure of Smith (NRA counsel) "we see the figure of Donald Richberg."

are called the blind forces of competition. . . . than I would to the sentimental tinkers who may approach omnipotence but are far from possessing omniscience."

He advocated a campaign of "educating the public" to the true "economic picture."

Compulsory unemployment insurance was advocated for both public and private employees by the National Association of Automobile Manufacturers, one of the largest employer groups in the country.

The automobile manufacturers suggested their proposal be incorporated in the tentative "platform for recovery" which will be submitted to the congress for ratification.

Three Attitudes on Idea.
Committees have studied proposals for unemployment insurance on reserves, and action is expected tomorrow. The plan has been debated by three factions.

One group calls for a period of study before national unemployment benefits legislation is enacted.

Another group asks that the industrialists shape legislation which will put the plan into immediate effect.

The third group, composed of those characterized as "die-hards," is against any legislation leading to unemployment insurance or reserves.

Walter Kohler's Views.
Walter J. Kohler, former Governor of Wisconsin, speaking today, said:

"There is grave danger that the combined efforts of the possibly sincere theorists advocating the fallacies of spreading employment and making extravagant governmental expenditures, together with labor racketeers who are obsessed with a rule or ruin program . . . may disrupt and destroy the unparalleled economic progress our nation so far has made."

"It is essential for our future industrial program that the right of employees to deal with their employers individually or collectively, in minority as well as majority groups, be maintained. . . . It is axiomatic that no general economic recovery is possible if industrial strife, such as characterized the past year and a half, continues."

Re-establishment of prosperity, said Kohler, can be attained only through mutual confidence between employer and employee. He voiced the fear that unemployment reserves supported by public funds would become a pawn in the game of partisan politics. "Far more important than unemployment insurance," he said, "is employment assurance. It would be no service to the workers themselves to impose a system so burdensome to industry as to lessen the ability of industry to provide jobs."

Driver, in Borrowed Auto, Hits Boy

He suffered a crushed chest and a skull injury. Barton told police he was driving west in the 600 block of Hickory street when the boy darted from behind a parked machine.

INVESTIGATORS REACH ISLAND OF 'EMPRESS'

Hope to Clear Up Her Disappearance and Two Mysterious Deaths.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 5.—Solution of puzzling death and disappearance mysteries was sought in the lonely Galapagos Islands today by a party of scientists.

Radio messages said the party, headed by Capt. G. Allan Hancock, expected to identify the mummified bodies of two men found on the uninhabited and waterless Marchena Island, and to confirm the theory of shipwreck and starvation after inquiry among the six inhabitants of Charles Island.

The bodies have been identified tentatively by a Los Angeles mariner from radioed descriptions as those of Alfred Rudolph Lorenz of Paris and Arthur Estampa, a Norwegian, both inhabitants of the lonely Galapagos.

After visiting Marchena Island where the bodies were found a month ago by fishermen, the scientists arrived off Charles Island yesterday.

There they also hoped to learn about the reported disappearance of Baroness Eloise Bousquet de Wagner, formerly of Vienna and Paris, who took Lorenz to Charles Island three years ago. Charles Island is the habitation of Dr. Friedrich Ritter of Berlin, and his mate, Frau Strauch Joerwin.

Baroness de Wagner, Dr. Ritter wrote Capt. Hancock last July, left Charles Island with Robert Phillipson some time ago. She was known as the "Island Empress."

IDAHO SENATORS EXPECTED TO CLASH OVER LEAGUE

Pope to Introduce Resolution and Make Fight for It; Borah Leading Opponent of Idea.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—An open fight between Idaho's Senators, Borah, Republican, and Pope, Democrat, is foreseen for the coming session of Congress with a statement by Pope today that he will introduce legislation to join the League membership for the United States on the second day of the session and "make a determined fight" to have it approved.

Pope has become prominent in associations and organizations urging the United States to join the League since he came to Washington and has consistently urged such a move as a "step toward international peace."

Pope declared the United States would be "fully protected by reservations now before the Senate." He said that "nationalism is one of the worst problems faced by the world today" and added that he believed the United States "could accomplish more toward world peace by joining in League activities."

Borah has asserted that joining the League would mean "a disintegrating alliance" which would prove detrimental to the peace and welfare of the United States.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Dec. 5.—Members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars were notified in a bulletin sent from the national headquarters of the organization here, against participation in any proposed "bonus marches" on Washington.

The order, signed by James E. Van Zandt, commander-in-chief, charged that those sponsoring "these proposed bonus marches are merely interested in fomenting revolution and discontent."

SON OF JUDGE SILENT ON WHY HE KILLED YOUTH

Kenamer cursed Gorrell and said he had wished to rent the plane as part of a plan to kill him. He intended, Huff quoted him as explaining, that Gorrell sit in the front cockpit and pilot the plane. A blow with a wrench, a parachute leap leaving the pilot to his fate, and the "perfect crime" would be accomplished. Such a plan constituted the plot in a short story appearing in a recent issue of a popular magazine.

In explaining his hatred for Gorrell, Huff said Kenamer showed him an extortion letter addressed to Wilcox and threatening his daughter. The letter had not been mailed. Kenamer also was said to have exhibited a dagger with which he said he intended to kill Gorrell and a pair of rubber gloves as a precaution against leaving fingerprints.

Says Gorrell Feared for Life.
Richard Oliver, Gorrell's roommate at Kansas City where both attended a dental college, came here last Saturday and told his story to Prosecutor Anderson. He said Gorrell had feared he would be killed due to a disagreement with "Bob Wilson" due to their operation of slot machines in Tulsa.

"Take a good look at him," Oliver quoted Gorrell as advising when it was learned "Wilson" was coming to Kansas City Nov. 20. "If I am found dead, he is the man who will have killed me."

"Wilson" later was identified by Oliver as Kenamer. Police had little to say about the slot machine operation referred to.

A few hours after Oliver had told his story, Kenamer surrendered to police. He was accompanied by his father, known for meeting out long sentences to offenders who come before him. But since then Judge Kenamer has not visited his son.

IDAHO SENATORS EXPECTED TO CLASH OVER LEAGUE

Pope to Introduce Resolution and
ing Opponent of Idea.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—An open fight between Idaho's Senators, Borah, Republican, and Pope, Democrat, is foreseen for the coming session of Congress with a statement by Pope today that he will introduce legislation to join the League membership for the United States on the second day of the session and "make a determined fight" to have it approved.

Pope has become prominent in associations and organizations urging the United States to join the League since he came to Washington and has consistently urged such a move as a "step toward international peace."

CARNEGIE STEEL OPPOSES LABOR ELECTIONS AT PLANTS

Challenges Right of Federal Board, Saying Interstate Commerce
Is Not Involved.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—The Carnegie Steel Co. today challenged the right of the Steel Labor Relations Board to conduct elections at its Duquesne, Pa., and McDonald, O., plants. Employees at the two plants, counsel for the company contended, were not engaged in any work that was a part of interstate commerce.

The company's challenge was made at a hearing before the board on the petition of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers for an election at the Pennsylvania and Ohio plants.

I. C. C. ORDERS CUT IN GRAIN RATES WEST OF MISSISSIPPI

Second Ruling in Same Case Modified in Light of Supreme Court Decision.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—In another attempt to solve an eight-year-old case, the Interstate Commerce Commission today directed railroads west of the Mississippi to lower freight rates on grain and grain products.

Once before the commission acted on the case, but carriers appealed to the Supreme Court, which held the commission had erred by not giving consideration to the effect of the depression on railroad traffic in 1931 and 1932.

And today the commission found that its first decision had prescribed rates that were too low for the Southwest and intermountain territories. Nevertheless, its new decision directed some reductions. It held, too, that some changes were necessary in transit and loading rules.

The new decision provided for through rates over direct routes through Minneapolis and the Missouri River market to Chicago, St. Louis, Memphis and the Southwest to be made by the combination of prescribed local rates to the intermediate markets and proportionate rates beyond. These combinations are to be applied to all shipments stopped at intermediate markets.

The decision limited to two transit stops—stops made for milling grain without separate charge.

It ruled that cereal food preparations should take a higher rate than grain and its direct products. It also placed corn, oats and other coarse grains on the same rate basis as wheat and flour. Coarse grains heretofore have taken a lower rate.

GERMAN IS FOUND GUILTY OF 'BURIED TREASURE' FRAUD

Dr. A. K. Graves Convicted at Memphis, Tenn., of Swindling Clarence Saunders Out of $1500.

SAID TO BE FORMER SECRET SERVICE MAN

Story of Hidden Gold, Invisible Ink Messages and U-Boats Told by Defendant on Stand.

Associated Press. MEMPHIS, Tenn., Dec. 5.—A 60-year-old German, who said he had met royalty all over the world, was convicted yesterday of a "treasure" swindle and sentenced to two years in the penitentiary. Indicted as Dr. Armgaard Kai Graves, former German secret service agent and author of books on international diplomacy, the defendant on the stand told a story of millions of dollars of buried gold, invisible ink messages, German U-boats and of a tilt with an Ambassador.

The jury, out 13 minutes, found him guilty of obtaining money under false pretenses. His alleged victim was Clarence Saunders, former operator of self-service grocery chains and now merchandising a cleaning fluid here.

Bond was fixed at $3000. A new trial motion will be argued Dec. 14. Graves has been in jail since his arrest several months ago at Port Arthur, Tex.

Testimony of Saunders. Saunders testified he gave Graves $1500 to help finance a trip to Haiti to uncover $3,000,000 in gold the defendant told him was buried there by German naval officers during the World War. Saunders said when Graves "slipped away" from his son, Lee Saunders, in New Orleans, he began to suspect something and had him arrested.

The defendant testified Graves was not his real name, but that he had been known by that and other names for 30 years. He said he held a doctor of philosophy degree but declined to give the name of the university. Asked if he had not used many aliases, he replied, addressing the jury:

"Gentlemen, I have been charged with impersonating everybody, even to his holiness, the Pope."

Defendant's Story of Gold. Alternately outwitting Assistant State's Attorney Sam D. Campbell, and pleading with Judge Tom Harsh over the right of the State to ask certain questions, he testified that he had brought "12,000 odd pounds of gold from Hayti, worth in excess of $3,000,000," in the past, but he had been searching for the rest of the treasure for 10 years without success.

Asked by Campbell if he attempted to blackmail Count Von Bernstorff, German Ambassador, to the United States before the war, he said that he had "trouble" with the Ambassador. He testified he obtained secret messages from German U-boats which he used in an attempt to obtain money from Von Bernstorff which he said the Count denied him. He also testified he received $1000 a month as technical director for the movie "Hell's Angels."

Left Letter With Saunders. The State introduced a letter the defendant had left with Saunders when he opened after Dr. Graves' death. It contained a blank sheet of paper, a coin and a red blank blotter.

Graves said the coin was one of the few remaining from the reign of Emperor Maximilian of Mexico. A man, he said, would have made contact with Saunders and received the paper, coin and red blotter.

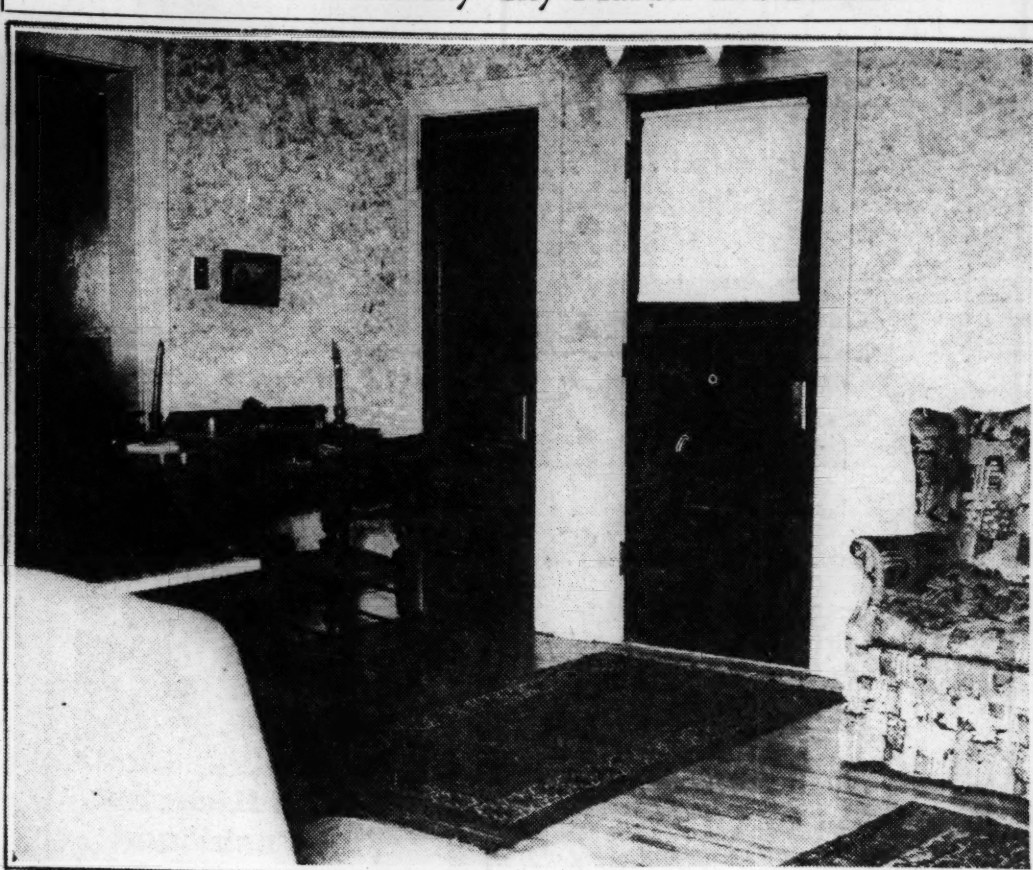

The State then introduced a second envelope supposed to contain information leading to the "treasure map." It too, contained a blank sheet of paper.

The police, Graves said, "in their curiosity have dipped this paper in acid or water, and have destroyed the writing that was on it. The writing was done in invisible ink that a special solution would have made clear."

Jury Hears Miller's Story. Miller's statement was read to the coroner's jury and he was not asked to testify. Only witness at the inquest was Earl Rusk, salesman and brother-in-law of Mrs. Delaney, who lived with the Rusk at the Carleton Apartments. Mrs. Rusk, an elder sister of the slain woman, is manager of the building. Rusk testified that just before Mrs. Delaney left home yesterday morning to go about her work as waitress for the Welcome Wagon Service Co., an advertising promotion enterprise, she received a telephone call which she terminated finally by saying, "I'll be out there about noon," or something to that effect. He said he heard her address the caller as "Mrs. Miller" or

LOS ANGELES CAR STRIKERS REJECT COMPANY PROPOSAL

Electric Railway Offered to Put 100 to Work in 90 Days, Others on Extra List.

Associated Press. LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 5.—A proposal to put 100 of the striking street car employees of the Los Angeles Railway to work within 90 days was rejected by the union men yesterday.

The proposal followed a conference between P. A. Donoghue of the National Labor Relations Board; Samuel M. Haskins, president of the company, and R. B. Armstrong, international vice-president of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employees. It provided for putting the other strikers on the extra list without the formality of a medical examination and with age restrictions waived.

Comments. Its requirement for a hostess is that she have an attractive personality and be able to make quick friendships, so that her recommendations may be accepted by the newcomers with whom she gets in contact.

It was learned today that during the past several months Mrs. Miller had called on some of the firms which were clients of the Welcome Wagon Service Co. and had attempted to have them sever connections, basing her request on an attack on Mrs. Delaney's character.

Formerly Lived in Memphis. Mrs. Delaney, formerly Miss Grace Smith of Covington, Tenn., resided in Memphis before separating from her husband about two years ago. She had lived since with the Rusk. She made her business calls in an automobile, which was found yesterday in front of the Miller apartment.

Mrs. Miller was formerly Mrs. Brinkerhoff, and lived in New York, but had been divorced about 10 years when she and Miller were married, Miller said. A son by the marriage to Brinkerhoff was graduated from New York University last year. Miller told Coroner Tiernon that Mrs. Miller would be buried in Chicago, where they lived before coming to St. Louis.

Miss Caroline Speck, a housemaid in the apartment below that of Mrs. Miller, fixed the time of the slaying of Mrs. Delaney at 11:15 a. m. At that time, she told reporters, she heard two shots, followed by a thud like the sound of a falling body, but did not investigate.

Shortly after noon, Ann Miller entered the apartment by the back door and saw the body of Mrs. Delaney lying on the living room floor. Later she told Chief Ward she recognized it as that of a woman she and her mother had seen in Miller's car in front of the Fairmont Hotel about a month ago.

The child called her mother several times, but got no answer. Terrified, she telephoned the office of her father in the Lunderman Building, Eleventh and Locust streets, and said, "there's a woman lying on our living room floor." She was told to leave the apartment and wait outside until her father could be reached, since he was not at his desk at the time.

Husband Finds Bodies. Miller was finally located. He hurried to the apartment. Bidding his daughter remain outside he entered by the rear door and found the bodies.

Mrs. Delaney lay on the east side of the living room near the hall door, face up. She had been shot once in the heart and once in the chest. The latter bullet had pierced the brain and emerged from the back of the head. The front of her coat and the wound in the chin were powdered, indicating she had been shot from close range. One of the bullets had passed through her left hand, which apparently she had raised to protect

JUDGE FARIS SAYS STATE MINE LAWS FAVOR OPERATORS

Voices Criticism in Overruling Lead Company's Demurrer in Silicosis Damage Suit.

Federal Judge Faris criticized the Missouri mining code, providing for inspection of mines and safety of miners, as unduly helpful to mine operators, in overruling a demurrer of the St. Joseph Lead Co. to the plaintiff's evidence in a $10,000 damage suit growing out of the death last year of Larkin Moore, a miner.

He permitted the case to go to the jury, which resumed its deliberations this morning after having been unable to reach a verdict during consideration of the evidence for two hours yesterday afternoon. Moore's widow is suing the lead company, charging negligence and alleging that his death was caused by tuberculosis resulting from silicosis contracted while working in the company's mines at Flat River, Mo.

Judge's Comment. "A very strange thing occurred in this case, and I think public interest requires that I advert to it," Judge Faris said in overruling the demurrer. "The two acts named, Sections 13660 and 13662 (of the mining code), one dealing with ventilation and the other with water, were passed, respectively, in 1911 and 1915.

"Notwithstanding that, we had a former State mine inspector coming here as a witness for plaintiff and telling at great length about the best situation he found down there (in the Flat River mines), notwithstanding he was an inspector from 1913 to 1921, when both statutes were in existence.

"The statute could hardly have been couched in language more politically considered—helpful to the mine operator than it was couched in."

Hazards of Mining. In stating he was trying to find a way to let the case go to the jury and declaring the situation in the company's mines was "bad," based solely on the plaintiff's evidence of the existence of clouds of white mineral dust, Judge Faris said:

"There ought to be some way, if possible, to avoid a situation of this sort. Miners' consumption has been known for many, many years. It is a necessary thing, perhaps—I mean in the sense that it is a hazard to which an employee must subject himself if the business of mining is to go on. You cannot avoid some of the hazard, whatever you take. It is a dangerous business, in other words, like making powder. This case involves some humanitarian principles.

Judge Faris' remarks were made in the absence of the jury.

'BIG SHOTS' MADE HIM SIGN BONDS, JOE LASKY SAYS

Names Professionals Who, He Declares, Threatened to Kill Him If He Didn't.

INSISTS HE OWNS LISTED BUILDINGS

But Records Show That Tenements Posted as Security Are Property of Four Women.

Forfeited bonds totaling $20,000, given to secure the appearance in court of three accused criminals who have taken flight, are a matter of no great concern to Joe Lasky, who says he is penniless, and signed the bonds only because two "big shots" — professional bondsmen whom he named — made him do it.

Lasky insisted, when a Post-Dispatch reporter saw him yesterday, that while he has no money he is the owner of a group of dilapidated tenements at Fifteenth and Biddle streets which he swore made him "worth" $25,000 when he qualified to sign the bonds. He exhibited tax receipts and a quit claim deed as evidence of his ownership. He was not disturbed when it was suggested that he might be prosecuted for swearing falsely to his qualifications as a bondsman because, he said, "I own it. I bought it. I pay the taxes. I am the boss."

What the Records Show. But the records do not bear Lasky out. The property is owned by four women who inherited it some years ago, and who now plan to wreck the buildings to save taxes. Lasky leased the property from them, but for several years, one of the owners said, he has paid no rent. They have been unable to collect from him because Lasky gets only trifling payments from the Negro families who live in the buildings.

Lasky's quit claim deed, covering only one corner of the property, was given to him last August by one Eva Davis. It is a deed to a leasehold, although Lasky professes ignorance on that point, and being a quit claim deed means only that Eva Davis surrendered to Lasky whatever interest, if any, she may have had in the leasehold. Lasky explained that at one time, being in need of cash, he "sold the property" to Eva Davis, and last August bought it back from her. He is vague about who Eva Davis may be, and says she "has gone far away."

His Mode of Living. Lasky, 70 years old, a Russian immigrant to this country 25 years ago, lives alone in a barren two-room apartment on "his" property. His wife and daughter have an apartment in the West End, but he prefers to live as he does.

When the reporter found him at dusk yesterday he was eating his evening meal, standing at a dresser, munching a loaf of stale bread which he had not bothered to slice, and nibbling at some pieces of melon, while nearby there was a larger section of the melon, discarded, apparently, because it was not so well preserved. The only other furniture in the room was a golden oak piano, and another dresser. An assortment of pipes, boxes, baskets, and old clothing cluttered the room. There was a stove, but it was not connected, and beneath his black broadcloth overcoat, faded to a vivid purple, Lasky wore three suit coats to keep him warm in the chill evening.

Threatened by "Big Shot." "I am a good man," he said to the reporter. "I am a church man. I do not want to have anything to do with a bad man. But this "big shot" came to me and said, 'Lasky, you are rich man, you have property. I want you to sign bonds for me. You sign or I kill you. I kill you with one finger some night.'

"He is big man," Lasky continued, spreading his arms to indicate the size of the "big shot." "He could do it with one finger. I am afraid, so I sign the bonds."

Lasky insisted that he was not a professional bondsman. He had been signing bonds, he said, only for about six months, since the "big shot" threatened him, and had been paid for signing only once. On that occasion, he said, the "big shot" stuffed $50 into his pocket.

Troubles With Tenants. But Lasky frequents the corridors of the Municipal Courts Building, as professional bondsmen are wont to do, and when he was asked about that, he said, "Oh, always I have trouble with the colored people. They fight me, and I have them arrested. Then I have to go to court."

His troubles with the Negro tenants of "his property," Lasky explained, arose largely out of his efforts to collect rent from them. "They tell me, 'Oh, go away, nobody pays rent any more,'" Lasky said. "Sometimes they give me 10 cents, 15 cents, or a quarter. That's all I can get. I have lost all my money."

The only bonds Lasky admits accepting money for were the two for $5000 he signed for Ralph Oakes and William Evans, which have since been forfeited. Oakes and Evans were accused of larceny in the theft of $17,000 bonds from the brokerage firm, A. G. Edwards & Sons. The two were arrested Oct. 9 and although they made strenuous efforts to secure bondsmen, were unable to do so for four days. Bondsmen were wary, — one told of refusing a $2000 fee — because the two were not known here, and it was rumored that they intended to jump their bonds as soon as they were out.

Immediately Jumped Bonds. That is just what they did, as soon as Lasky signed their bonds, which were accepted by Judge Butler, recently retired from the Court of Criminal Correction. Sigmund Bass, attorney for Oakes and Evans, said he understood his clients had paid $800 to two bondsmen — the two Lasky describes as "big shots." All Lasky says he got, however, was the $50 stuffed into his pocket by one of them. The two bondsmen have denied that they had any connection with the affair.

The other bond forfeiture against Lasky is one of $10,000 he gave for Michael Novack, who failed to appear in Circuit Court last week for trial on a robbery charge. Novack is accused of holding up an employee of the Lynn Meat Co., and robbing her of $917.

Home Robbed of $250 in Jewelry. Henry Wachtel, a hardware store proprietor, 717 North Thirty-eighth street, East St. Louis, reported to police that burglars took jewelry valued at $250 from his home last night while he and his wife were away.

SOLICITORS REPORT ON RELIEF CAMPAIGN

500 in Mayor's Supplementary
at Meeting Today.

First reports of the 500 solicitors drafted for service in Mayor Dickmann's supplementary United Relief Campaign were to be made today at a meeting at Hotel Statler. Since Monday these workers have been engaged in an effort to raise an additional $500,000 so that the $2,708,000 goal of the campaign may be attained. The Mayor hopes to end his campaign Friday.

Several teams of workers, the Mayor announced, has completed solicitation of the cards assigned to them, and have asked for new assignments. The supplementary appeal is being directed chiefly to about 10,000 persons who already have given to United Relief, but who, in the opinion of the managers of the campaign, could have given more.

Reports of contributions made during the original United Relief campaign, which formally closed last Wednesday, continue to be received at headquarters. In all, it is expected, these will total about $100,000, to be added to the $2,124,800 pledged when the campaign ended.

Among recent reports was a contribution of $12,007 by 237 employees of the postoffice. Other reports from the employe division included $1296 from 124 employes of Lawton-Byrne-Bruner Insurance Agency, and $1391 from 262 employes of Hotel Jefferson.

MAYOR'S CHRISTMAS DINNER TO BE SERVED IN AUDITORIUM

City Employes and Others to Give Funds and Provision Dealers
Will Be Asked to Donate Food.

Preparations for the Mayor's second annual Christmas dinner party for the poor were begun yesterday at a meeting in Mayor Dickmann's office of the same group which handled that given last year.

The dinner will be served in the exhibition hall of Municipal Auditorium between 10 a. m. and 6 p. m. Christmas day. Attendance is expected to be at least as great as last year, when about 26,000 men, women and children were served. Lists of worthy persons will be submitted by the police and Democratic ward workers. Admission tickets will specify the time for appearance.

Food, including roast pork, will be cooked at city institutions and warmed at the auditorium. Volunteer entertainment and music will be provided all day. The public, city employes and political workers have been invited to contribute funds and provision dealers will be asked to donate food. Political and city workers will serve the meal, working two and one-half hour shifts. Toys will be distributed among children at the dinner and sent to other children in hospitals and orphan's homes.

3.2 BEER DEALERS ORGANIZE TO KEEP PRESENT STATUS

Will Fight to Prevent Transfer of Law's Administration to Liquor Control Department.

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 5.—Missouri wholesale dealers of 3.2 beer organized here yesterday and laid preliminary plans to fight for retention of the official status of their beverage as a non-intoxicating drink.

Forty dealers from Kansas City, St. Louis, Springfield, Carthage, Jefferson City and other towns attended the meeting and elected officers to map out a program. O. E. Jennings of Springfield was elected president. A committee composed of Ernest Moerschel, Jefferson City; Otto Ruhl of Springfield, and W. F. Crane of Clinton was appointed to draft by-laws. Another meeting will be held in about two weeks.

The purpose of the organization, as explained by those attending, is to fight to keep administration of the 3.2 beer law from the State Liquor Control Department. The 3.2 beer act is administered by the State Pure Food and Drug Department.

TRICKERY CHARGED IN CHICAGO REALTY RECEIVERSHIPS

$250,000,000 Loss in Recent Years Alleged by Special Investigator at Congressional Hearing.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 5.—Charges that trickery and mismanagement in the operation of real estate property in receivership cost the people of Chicago $250,000,000 in recent years were made yesterday as the Congressional subcommittee investigating real estate bondholders' reorganizations resumed its hearings.

J. L. Tupy of Chicago, a special committee investigator and former contractor, who made the charge, told the Congressmen many realty speculators had been "guilty of violations of the criminal law" and that they "should be in penal institutions if it were not for the Statute of Limitations."

"We have found frauds, even forgery," he said.

The loss to the people of the Chicago area through real estate "trickery" and "mismanagement" was placed by Tupy at $250,000,000. "The investigation so far," he said, "has only scratched the surface."

To Order Inquiry of Firm. Representative A. J. Sabath, chairman of the committee, announced he would order an investigation of the records of the Chicago Title & Trust Co.

Investigation of the trust concern was recommended by Charles W. Freedman, accountant, who testified he had examined records of the reorganization by the American Bond & Mortgage Co. of 189 properties on which it had issued bonds. The trust company served as receiver or trustee for many of these properties.

"These companies represent only one phase of our work," Sabath said. "We are going to the bottom of this bondholders' protective committee situation. We will ask the District Attorney to prosecute if we find any basis for criminal action in our investigations."

Freedman's report concerned the protective committee for holders of $111,000,000 of first mortgage bonds issued by the American Bond & Mortgage Co., which is now in receivership. Members of the committee, formed in 1929, were named as Craig Hazenwood, Dayton Kiffin and Joseph E. Otis, Chicago bankers; F. C. Curry, W. T. Perkins and James Robertson, New York bankers; F. W. Blair of Detroit, and W. K. Halleth and W. J. Sugden of Boston.

Stating that none except Sugden had personal investments in the properties, Freedman told the committee: "Yet this self-appointed committee virtually decided who should be counsel, who should be depository for the bonds, what fees should be charged by the committee and what control they should exercise after reorganization of the properties."

Freedman said the committee had handled $10,306,000 for the bondholders in 71 of the reorganizations and that the committee members, attorneys and depositories received $1,995,228 or more than 15 per cent of the money handled. He suggested that a Federal commission be formed to regulate such practices.

Macley Hoyne, head of the committee's legal advisory board, testified his investigations had disclosed that "in making loans on real estate and the issue and sale of bonds upon such security there had been gross misrepresentations, overvaluations, other frauds and even forgery."

WISCONSIN BANK CLOSES

$115,000 in Insurance Carried by Sauk City Depository.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—The Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation reports today the failure of the State Bank of Sauk City, Wis., with insurance obligations of $115,000. The insurance corporation will reimburse depositors in the amount prescribed by law either today or tomorrow, it was said.

This failure marks the eighth since insurance of deposits went into effect last Jan. 1.

Bradford Washburn Gives Illustrated Talk at Soldan Auditorium.

Bradford Washburn, associated with the Harvard University geology department, gave an illustrated lecture last night at Soldan High School auditorium on his ascent of Mount Crillon, highest peak of the Fairweather Range along the Alaskan coast.

Washburn, who spoke under auspices of the Washington University Association, was successful in reaching the summit of the peak last summer, his third attempt.

HARDWOOD INSTITUTE BOARD VOTES AGAINST PRICE-FIXING

Directors Approve All Other Provisions of Lumber Code; Elect New President.

By the Associated Press. MEMPHIS, Tenn., Dec. 5.—Directors of the Hardwood Manufacturers' Institute last night voted opposition to price fixing.

The board reversed its previous stand in regard to cost protection prices and adopted a resolution urging their abolition. It also adopted resolutions expressing support for all other lumber code provisions. Following the unexpected resignation of Lee Robinson of Mount Vernon, Ala., as president, the directors elected Ben Johnson of Shreveport, La., to succeed him.

STORY OF HOOVER PLEA IN HUNT FOR LINDBERGH BABY

Secretary Says President Wrote One for Radio but Withheld It on Request.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—A hitherto untold story of an appeal by former President Hoover for the return of the kidnapped Lindbergh baby, written but never delivered, is told by Theodore G. Joslin, presidential secretary at the time, in a just published book, "Hoover Off the Record." Joslin says he received word that Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh would appreciate the President's making such an appeal. Hoover approved the suggestion and wrote it himself. Before its delivery, however, Joslin says, word came from Col. Lindbergh that an important development was expected momentarily and that it would be best under the circumstances if the President did not make it.

The appeal, which was to have been nationally broadcast, but discarded after the suggestion by Col. Lindbergh, is quoted by Joslin as follows:

"Mrs. Lindbergh has asked me to request the return of her baby boy. It is a request no man would refuse. If anyone within the sound of my voice knows where that baby is, I ask that they immediately communicate with the proper authorities and if they do not, may God have mercy on their souls."

HAUPTMANN'S GERMAN POLICE RECORD ARRIVES

It Shows That in Holdup at 20 He Urged Companion to Fire on Two Woman Victims.

By the Associated Press.

TRENTON, N. J., Dec. 5.—The German police record of Bruno Richard Hauptmann, charged with murder of the Lindbergh baby, sets forth that he took part in a highway robbery at the age of 20 and urged his companion to open fire on two women who refused at first to stand still.

The record was sent to Attorney General David T. Wilentz for use in Hauptmann's trial.

Hauptmann, the records show, was convicted on June 3, 1919, on three charges of grand larceny, one charge of petty larceny and receiving stolen goods, and sentenced to two years, six months and one week. On June 17, 1919, he received an additional sentence of two years and six months on a charge of highway robbery, a total of five years and one week.

In 1923 Hauptmann was released and placed on a three-year probation. He was suspected of committing three other crimes, involving alleged larceny of drive belts, but he denied committing them. He was arrested June 12, 1923, but escaped eight days later while exercising in the jail yard. The authorities learned later he had escaped to America.

The record of "Case 4," one of nine in the transcript, follows:

"Case 4. The criminals held up two women on the road between Wiesa and Nebelschütz, one woman residing in Opitz and the other in Wendischbaselitz. These women were pushing baby carriages and were walking behind them. They stopped them and said 'Stand back and unpack.' They stopped the carriage of one of the women and took out nine bread rolls and eight foodstuffs cards (these cards were issued to each family during and after the war in order to distribute equally bread, flour, etc., to every family) and a pocketbook containing three marks. At first the women refused to stop and Petzold, using an army pistol which was loaded and belonging to Hauptmann, pointed same at the women and threatened them and both called to the women, 'We'll shoot, we're radicals.' Hauptmann urged Petzold to shoot which Petzold failed to carry out. They split the proceeds in the woods."

Lloyd Fisher, associate defense counsel, has made arrangements to see Hauptmann in the cell beyond earshot of his guards and to take a stenographic account of his story. Fisher hitherto has talked to Hauptmann only in the presence of the guards who watch over the prisoner every minute of the day and night.

EMPLOYERS AND LAUNDRY DRIVERS HAVEN'T AGREED

Union Leaders Will Make Report
Tomorrow Night on Progress of Negotiations.

Union laundry drivers will meet tomorrow night to hear a report by their leaders on negotiations for a new working contract.

Prior to the expiration of the previous contract last Saturday the drivers voted authority to their officers to call a strike if negotiations for a new agreement failed. Union leaders and representatives of the industry met again yesterday without reaching an agreement. William Frenger, union business agent, stated that negotiations had not been terminated, however.

The drivers have requested a preferential contract, which employers so far have hesitated to sign. There would be no change in base pay or hours, but the drivers requested an adjustment of commission. There are more than 500 men in the union.

EX-KAISER NOT TO GET USUAL BIRTHDAY NOTE FROM PEOPLE

Possible in Republican Times, but Not Today, Says Paper That Collected Signatures.

By the Associated Press.
BERLIN, Dec. 5.—Because of "difficulties" peculiar to the times, the former German Kaiser, in exile at Doorn, will not receive on his seventy-fifth birthday next month his customary congratulatory message, signed by his "loyal subjects."

"Der Aufrechte," fortnightly publication which formerly collected the signatures for transmission to Wilhelm Hohenzollern, announced the custom would be discontinued.

"What was possible in republican times no longer is possible today," the periodical said. "We refrain from entering into particulars, but we have been advised from many quarters that the usual registration of signatures is now made too difficult."

CATS CAN SEE IN THE DARK

Children can't!

Poor light is a terrific strain on the six big band-like muscles that move young eyes.

Children who are straining their eyes, trying to see, are tired and nervous. And poor light is one of the causes of the damaged eyesight which one out of every five school children has. The number steadily mounts, till fifty per cent are wearing glasses—or should be—at the end of college days.

You can guard against it with so little trouble, so little expense. Have the right amount of light, and the right kind of light in your home. Not one home in ten does that—yet it benefits everybody in the family!

There are wonderful new lighting fixtures and portable lamps, scientifically designed for eye comfort and to help eyes develop normally. The electricity they use adds scarcely anything to your bill—especially in St. Louis, where electricity is cheap.

Your dealer has them to show you. Look at the useful little Pin-It-Up Lamps that you can hang in a jiffy in any dark spot. And look at the new table and floor lamps that are certified by leading authorities. They are called the I. E. S. Better Sight Lamps. (That stands for Illuminating Engineering Society.) They are decorative, inexpensive, and a marvelous scientific development.

One of our Lighting Experts will call and tell you what correct home lighting means. Her services are free. She has nothing to sell. But the suggestions you get from her will help you protect your children's vision.

These are the I. E. S. BETTER SIGHT LAMPS. They come in floor and table models. They give, without glare, the amount of light that science says eyes need for swift, easy seeing. The light is softened and spread by a glass bowl reflector. The maximum is reflected, by especially treated shades. The height is scientifically correct. Look for the official tag, marked I. E. S. It proves your lamp was created by the Illuminating Engineering Society, and properly certified and endorsed. Prices range from $5.95 to $31.50.

This is the Sight Meter—the amazing little instrument which our Lighting Expert will bring to your home. It measures light as a thermometer measures heat. It will tell you whether the light you are using is right. The Lighting Expert's services are free and without obligation. Write, or telephone (Main 3222) for an appointment.

• ONLY the finest, freshest vegetables and fruits, bought direct from the growers.

• ONLY the first grade, extra-select fresh eggs and fattened poultry. ONLY Grade A Milk, Cream and Butter used in cooking. ONLY the better grades of choice, Government-inspected meats.

• ONLY the finest quality, nationally advertised canned foods... the same brands you buy for your own table.

How can we afford it, at Forum Prices? Because, the difference in wholesale costs of first quality foods and ordinary grades is small in volume. Forum buying volume and efficient, modern operating methods easily absorb that difference. That pays for the best!

How can you tell? We welcome you to come and see our foods in preparation. Come and see the very best food labels on our stockroom shelves. Come and make the famous "Score Card Test" (below) that shows you definitely where the best place to eat really is.

$372,752 VALUATION ON COLNOL ESTATE

Actual Worth $600,000 Executor Says, Permitting Carrying Out of Bequests.

A valuation of $372,752 was placed on the estate of Mrs. Katherine Fruin Colnol in an inventory filed in Probate Court yesterday. Mrs. Colnol, widow of Redmond S. Colnol, former president of the Fruin-Colnol Construction Co., died last Oct. 7. Her will made specific bequests to relatives, charities and schools totaling $398,000 and directed that the residue be used to establish a home for the aged as a memorial to her husband and to her father, the late Jeremiah Fruin. Philip C. Wise, attorney for the executor, estimated the actual value of the estate at more than $600,000, enabling the executor, Joseph E.

Vollmar, to carry out the provisions of the will. Various stocks, including 6340 shares in the Missouri Portland Cement Co., are listed at the nominal valuation of $1 a share. Also, Wise pointed out, no appraisal was made of the residence, at 4569 West Pine boulevard, and property at Grand boulevard and North Market street.

The bulk of the estate consists of bonds valued at $310,063. Stocks are carried at $13,941. Other items include cash $27,445; notes, $14,500; jewelry, $879; goods and chattels, $922.

Mrs. Colnol, who was 74 years old, left $80,000 to St. Louis Catholic charities, and $20,000 to Cornell University. The university was requested to establish four scholarships in its engineering school as a memorial to Redmond Colnol.

For her brother, John J. Fruin of Wichita, Kan., Mrs. Colnol established a $60,000 trust, which is to revert to the estate at his death. Other large bequests included $40,000 to Mrs. Jennie Quinn of Watertown, N. Y.; $40,000 to Mrs. Adelaide Smith of Oswego, N. Y.; $20,000 to Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Colnol.

COTTON CONTROL RIGHTING PRICES, ROOSEVELT SAYS

COCHRAN SPENT $4975
ON HIS TWO CAMPAIGNS

That for Congress, Which He Won, Cost $25 Less Than Senatorship Race He Lost.

Campaign expense reports were filed with the Recorder of Deeds today by Congressman Cochran, Thomas C. Hennings and Glendy B. Arnold.

Cochran filed two reports, one for $2000 covering the expenses of his unsuccessful campaign for nomination for the United States Senate on the Democratic ticket. The second, $1975, was for his successful race for re-election as Congressman from the Thirteenth District. The $2000 represented Cochran's personal expenditures for travel, telegrams and postage, the general expenses of the campaign being paid by the Cochran Senatorial Campaign Committee, the report states. Of the total spent for re-election as Congressman, $1500 was distributed in 223 precincts on election day and $450 was donated to the Democratic City Committee. The report notes that $1730 represented "contributions of friends."

Hennings spent $1672.94 in his successful campaign for Congress from the Twelfth District. His report states that $475 was given the Democratic City Committee, and the balance spent for printing and advertising.

Arnold, elected Probate Judge, spent $780.25. He gave $450 to the Democratic City Committee and spent the rest for advertising.

Former Congressman Cleveland A. Newton, Republican, who was defeated for Congressman from the Twelfth District, reported expenditure of $599 in the primary and $2141 in the election campaign. The election campaign items included contributions of $250 to the Republican City Committee of St. Louis and $200 to the Republican County Committee of St. Louis County.

President to Urge Exemption for Two-Bale Producers If South Votes to Extend Bankhead Act.

By the Associated Press.

WARM SPRINGS, Ga., Dec. 5.—President Roosevelt last night endorsed the Bankhead Cotton Control Act, declaring that acreage control was the means of obtaining parity for the farmer between the price of his products and that of the goods he buys. The South will vote this month in a referendum on the Bankhead Act.

The President also read the following statement to newspaper men:

"If the Bankhead Act is continued in effect for another year it is my purpose to recommend to the Congress an amendment granting an exemption for the full amount of his base production to each farmer who has an established base production of not more than two bales of cotton."

Figures on Parity Price. The President cited figures to show that the parity price for farmers in 1932 would have been about 13 cents while the actual price was 5 1/2 cents. Today he said the parity price was about 15 cents and the actual price about 12 1/2 cents. This he regarded as a considerable accomplishment.

Mr. Roosevelt also asserted that when the price was as low as 5 1/2 cents, exports were diminishing. In other words, he believes cheap cotton does not mean increased exports and therefore the reduction of the large surplus must be accomplished by acreage control. He believes the existing 10,250,000 bale surplus can be cut to 8,750,000 bales by next August and that within two years the normal surplus of 4,000,000 bales will be reached.

He added, however, there was no intention of bringing about 20 or 25 cents cotton. Rather, he repeated the objective was to give parity for the farmers of the South and he feels if that parity is obtained more will be done for the South than through any other single measure in the lifetime of the people.

Two Bale Exemption. The exemption for two bale cotton farmers from the Control Act will affect about 600,000 growers but the amount of cotton involved is estimated at only 700,000 bales. The President regards the exemption as helping those who most need help and also as bringing about simplification in regulation.

Mr. Roosevelt gave his views in an informal press conference when he stopped at the cottage occupied by newspaper men late in the day during a drive about the place. He accepted an invitation to enter, read his statement, discussed his views and added that he wished he could stay longer.

Asked about the new relief and budget plans he smiled and replied: "January 3."

That is the date when Congress convenes. In response to an inquiry he said he hoped to bring about the same parity between prices for farmers in other crops but added that he saw no need for compulsory acreage control as provided under the Bankhead bill for other farmers.

FEES OF $9300 ALLOWED IN HOTEL RECEIVERSHIP

Five Share Amount Allotted in Sale of Fairmount Property for $41,000.

Legal fees amounting to $9300 were allowed by Circuit Judge Pharey today in connection with the receivership of the Fairmount Hotel, 4907 Maryland avenue. The property was sold at foreclosure Oct. 29 to Hugo Monnig, acting for bondholders, whose bid of $41,000 was confirmed by the court.

The receiver, Seneca C. Taylor, an attorney, was allowed $5000 for services dating from March, 1932; William Kohn, his counsel, $1200; John U. Menteer, trustee of a mortgage under which the property was sold, $600; Foristel Mudd, Blair and Habenicht, counsel for the trustee, $1500; and James N. McKelvey, special Commissioner in charge of the sale, $1000.

The sale was ordered as a result of default in payment of the principal and interest on bonds issued by the hotel corporation, the bonds being secured by the property. The total amount of defaults was found to be $211,000.

THREE MEN ARRESTED AFTER HALTING COAL TRUCK

Driver Says They Asked Him to Join Association; Peace Disturbance Charged.

Police sent to Thirteenth and Chouteau streets today by a report of a disturbance there found a group of men gathered at a coal truck and charged three of them with peace disturbance on the driver's statement they had halted his truck and asked him to join the Missouri Dump Truck Owners' Association.

The driver, Joseph Hensley, 4517 Newberry terrace, told police, who found a loaded pistol under the dashboard of his truck, that he took the pistol with him after hearing that coal trucks had been stopped and dumped by groups of men on the East Side. He operates his truck between St. Louis and near-by Illinois coal fields.

EX-CONVICT GETS 5 YEARS FOR HOLDUP

Joseph Hale Pleads Guilty After Threatened State's Witness Fails to Appear.

Joseph Hale, a former convict, pleaded guilty of robbery before Circuit Judge Baron yesterday after the State had announced it was ready to proceed with his trial although one of its chief witnesses was missing.

He was sentenced to five years in Alcoa Farms, intermediate reformatory. Henry Boerner, his accomplice in the holdup who had no previous prison record, pleaded guilty last July and was sentenced to five years in the penitentiary.

When Hale's case was called for trial Monday, it developed that Robert Hudson, one of the two persons whom Hale and Boerner held up at York and Maryland avenues last May 28, was missing. Patrolman Henry Meyers of Maplewood, who helped arrest the pair in Maplewood 15 minutes later after exchanging shots with Boerner, said Hudson had been threatened.

Hudson told him last July, he said, that he had met two men in a tavern and that one of them had said: "If you know what's good for you, you won't show up when Hale's case is called."

Policemen who went to Hudson's home, 4525 Westminister place, were informed he was in Cleveland on a visit. Yesterday, however, Assistant Circuit Attorney Woodruff announced he was ready for trial.

Miss Helen Nichols, 212 Maury avenue, who was seated in her car with Hudson when the holdup men robbed them and took her automobile, was in court ready to testify.

Attorney Sigmund M. Bass conferred with Woodruff, following the announcement of "ready," then had his client plead guilty. Judge Baron questioned Hale briefly, learned that he was 23 years old, lived with his parents at 4472 Forest Park boulevard. Hale was not asked about previous convictions, but had told policemen he had served 30 months in prison in Texas for stealing an automobile.

Comment on Reformatory Sentence. Afterward, Judge Baron said that he had known of Hale's previous record in Texas, but pointed out that it was for larceny of an automobile and not for a crime of violence. "I feel like I am signing a man's death warrant when I send him to the penitentiary," he said. "I can't bring myself to send up a young man when there seems to be any possible chance to reform him. This defendant's mother and sister appealed to me to give him a chance to reclaim himself, and that is what I did by sending him to Alcoa Farms."

The arrest of Boerner and Hale followed a radio broadcast giving the description and license number of Miss Nichols' car. When Maplewood policemen stopped the machine, Boerner jumped out, fired a shot and ran. He was shot and seriously wounded, but Hale gave up without resistance.

LORD RIDDELL DIES; BRITISH PUBLISHER

Owner of Sunday Paper, Representative of English Press at Peace Conference.

By the Associated Press.
WALTON HEATH, England, Dec. 5.—Lord Riddell, 69 years old, one of the outstanding figures of British journalism, died today of the effects of a cold contracted Oct. 23. Lord Riddell built his name and fortune from a London Sunday newspaper, News of the World. Trained in law, he started his career as a solicitor in 1888 but added journalism as a side line when he acquired an interest in the Western Mail, Cardiff. For a time he carried on both pursuits but publishing became his chief interest when, soon after the turn of the century, he obtained control of the News of the World. In 1934 this publication certified a net circulation of more than 3,350,000. Lord Riddell gradually extended his publishing interests, becoming chairman of George Newnes Ltd., chairman of C. Arthur Pearson Ltd., director of Newnes-Pearson Printing Co. Ltd., director of W. H. & L. Collingridge Ltd., and vice-chairman of Country Life Ltd. Knighted in 1909. The publications produced by this grouping of concerns differed widely in character but he took a personal interest in each and was in constant touch with their problems. By 1909, when he was knighted, he had become one of the most influential men in London journalism and after the outbreak of the World

Noted Journalist Dead

LORD RIDDELL.

War he became the chief link between the press and the Government. In this capacity he represented the British press at the peace conference in 1919 and at all important allied conferences subsequently, including the Washington arms limitation conference in 1921. He was credited with breaking down the strict censorship prevailing in the early days of the war. He was a close friend of David Lloyd George, war-time Prime Minister. He was created a baronet in 1918 and in 1920 his war services were rewarded by his elevation to the peerage as Baron Riddell of Walton Heath.

Author of War Diary.

George Allardice Riddell was born May 25, 1865, in London, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Riddell. He married Annie Molison, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Allardice. They had no children. Though he was frail in appearance, he was an indefatigable worker not only in the publishing field but as an author of books and in hospital interests, with maternity welfare commanding leading attention. He was a non-smoker and a teetotaler. Lord Riddell produced an intimate work in 1933, his war diary, and then set himself to the task of giving an "inside story" on the Versailles treaty. Lord Riddell leaves no heir and the Barony, therefore, becomes extinct. SILAS STRAWN BARRED C. OF C. HALL TO DISCUSSION GROUP

He Says Decision Was Due to Fact That Forum Charged Admission.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Dec. 5. — Silas Strawn, trustee and past president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, is blamed by officials of the Town Hall of Washington, a fashionably-sponsored forum group, for an order by the Chamber closing its auditorium to further meetings of the group. Huston Thompson, Washington attorney and president of the Town Hall board of trustees, said Strawn had objected to using the Chamber's hall for a series of winter programs because it included such speakers as Norman Thomas, Lewis Corey and Maurice Hindus. Thompson quoted Strawn as saying the Forum programs featured a "cross-section of crazy, crack-brains." Thompson said he had explained to Strawn that the organization proposed to present a cross section of all views "including conservatives as well as the liberal and radical." Thompson also said Norman Thomas had spoken in the building on the same platform with Eugene Meyer, former Republican Governor of the Federal Reserve Board without objection from the Chamber. Meyer is one of the sponsors of the Forum group. Other sponsors include Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, and several Cabinet members and their wives. Strawn, in New York, said: "We found they were charging admission. Naturally we could not permit the Chamber building in Washington to enter into competition with Washington halls engaged in the business of selling seats for gatherings."

FINED AS DRUNKEN DRIVER

O. E. Eisenworth, Saloonkeeper, Assessed $150 by Judge.
Oscar E. Eisenworth, saloonkeeper, 2600 Iowa avenue, was fined $150 and costs by Police Judge Finnegan yesterday for driving when intoxicated. A policeman testified that Eisenworth drove east without lights from Seventh street on the wrong side of Poplar street to Broadway, where his car struck another machine. Eisenworth testified he had been ill and took two drinks before he left his establishment. "You'd better sell your liquor, not drink it," Judge Finnegan said, assessing the fines. Eisenworth appealed.

$300,000 FIRE SWEEPS WARNER BROS. STUDIO

Excitement Fatal to One Employee; 15 Injured, Including Actor Rudolph 'Hoop.

By the Associated Press.
BURBANK, Cal., Dec. 5.—Fire destroyed part of Warner Brothers' First National Studios, causing one death, injury to 15 persons and damage estimated at $300,000, before it was extinguished early today.

Albert Runder, 65 years old, Fire Chief of the motion picture studio, died of a heart attack, which doctors said was induced by the excitement. Rudolph 'Hoop, an actor, and Nick Potkoff, workman, were the most seriously injured. Each suffered a broken leg, minor burns and bruises.

Executives of the studio said the fire swept over about half the 80 acres occupied by the plant, but that the area was of minor importance in the production of pictures. For a time the flames threatened to spread to the front of the lot, occupied by sound stages, administration buildings, cutting rooms, developing rooms and laboratories. The fire destroyed several outdoor sets, including the famous "New York set," used in many pictures.

Firemen from Burbank, Hollywood and Los Angeles helped fight the blaze, which was discovered by Director Michael Curtiz. Seventy-five extras, who had been working on a picture, joined firemen in fighting the flames. The firemen said they thought the blaze might have originated from sparks in the machine shop, which was destroyed, along with the tin, carpenter and plumbing shops.

Canadian Boxers to Appear on Amateur Program at Coliseum

An unusual amateur boxing program will be presented at the Coliseum tonight when a team of Canadians, members of the Elm Grove Club in Toronto, engage in a series of contests. Four of the boys are champions of Canada and the other is title holder of the province of Ontario. As opponents for the Canadians, Benny Kessler, matchmaker, has provided one U. S. champion, a Chicago Golden Gloves title holder, two other outstanding boxers from Illinois and one St. Louis youngster. Jimmy Webb is the one local boy matched in a feature contest. He will meet Harry Greb, Ontario champion, in a middleweight battle. Tommy Barry, brother of Dave, well-known professional boxer, who won the national flyweight championship in the A. A. U. tournament at the Arena last spring, is to meet Tony Canzano, bantamweight champion of Canada. Barry has grown into the 118-pound class since the tournament. Keith Graves, a Chicago Golden Gloves titleholder, has come here to meet Paul Amato, light-heavyweight champion of Canada, while Dave Yack, Dominion lightweight king, opposes Russ Ringenberg, Springfield, Ill., and Sammy Luftspring, Canadian middleweight champion, meets Johnny Martin of Peoria. In addition to the card of features there will be three preliminaries between boxers selected from 42 entrants. All contests will be five rounds.

Toronto Defeats Boston, 1 to 0; Montreal Wins

BOSTON, Dec. 5.—The fast traveling Toronto Maple Leafs regained their winning stride last night by shutting out the Boston Bruins, 1-0, before 13,000, largest crowd of the season, at the Boston Garden. The Leafs, who lost their first game of the season in Detroit Sunday night, gained their winning tally last night in the opening period. Happy Day carried on a four-man rush and batted the puck over the Boston line. Charley Conacher gained it against the right boards, stick-handled through the Boston defense and across the lip of the cage before back-handing the rubber, the Boston goalie. The Bruins, due to Toronto penalties, had several openings during the last two periods, but their attack refused to click. Canadiens Defeat Rangers. MONTREAL, Dec. 5.—The Montreal Canadiens staged a late comeback to defeat the New York Rangers, 5 to 3, last night, for their second victory of the National Hockey League season and their second over the Patrick's Blue Shirts from New York. It was the Rangers' fourth consecutive defeat. Trailing 3-1 at the end of the second period, the Rangers plunged through the habit of defense to tie the score, but the Canadiens rang the bell with more counters in the latter part of the period. Joe Lamb, just obtained, gave himself a big send-off by figuring in four of the Canadian goals. The other was a penalty shot by Al Mondour. Lamb netted two solo goals in the second period and

Wilson, S. M. U. Star, Is Ready to Oppose the Bears

DALLAS, Tex., Dec. 5. WITH the pressure off in the closed Southwest Conference race, and nothing but a final interconference game against Washington University Bears of St. Louis impending, the Southern Methodist Mustangs romped through a light workout yesterday. Only Bob Finley, reserve halfback, was out of uniform. The rest of the squad seemed in good shape for Saturday's game. Coach Ray Morrison issued new variations to several plays, and suggested some series of formations he believes will be effective against the Bears. Bob Wilson, regular halfback, who was out of the Texas Christian game last week with injuries, again was in shape, and probably will start against the Bears.

SPARTA SOCCER ELEVEN TO PLAY HERE NEXT WEEK

The Sparta Club of Chicago has been selected by the board of directors of the Soccer Players' Protective Association of St. Louis to appear in the feature game of a doubleheader to be presented at Walsh Memorial Stadium on Friday night, Dec. 14. A team of St. Louis Soccer League players will be selected to oppose Sparta and it is likely that most of the players who formed the team that smothered the Chicago Wieboldts will be named. Sparta of Chicago is one of the strongest teams in the West and is regarded by soccer observers as the closest thing to a European club in its system of play. Sparta is made up of Czech-Slovakians, most of whom were born in Europe, but some of their outstanding stars are American-born boys of Czech parentage. A German youth, Bauer, is in goal. The first game of the benefit doubleheader will be between the Spanish All-Stars, a team composed of Spanish boys, amateur and professional, and the Alpen Braus, leaders of the Group Two race at Fairground in the Municipal League. The Alpen Braus are essentially the same club that won the Municipal championship last season under the name "Doyle's". They are operated by Elmer Dowling. An advance ticket sale, at 25 cents each, will be opened within a day or two. Admission at the gate will be 50 cents.

Y. M. C. A. BASKETBALL LEAGUE OPENS TONIGHT

The Y. M. C. A. Industrial Basketball League opens its season tonight at the Armory, Grand and Market. Eight games are scheduled for the opening round. The schedule: 7:30—Fouke Fur vs. Wagner Electric, Division No. 1; Rawlins vs. Laclede-Christy, Division No. 2. 8:00—Wabash vs. McQuay-Norris, Division No. 3. 8:30—Baker Shoe vs. Purina Mills, Division No. 1; Wohl Shoe vs. Brown Shoe, Division No. 2. 9:00—United States Engineers vs. Mission Pacific, Division No. 2. 9:30—St. C. Penny vs. Naval Reserve (practice), Division No. 1; Six-Bar-Fuller vs. Monsanto Chemical, Division No. 3.

BILLIKENS PICK HUDSON TO LEAD ELEVEN IN 1935

A mild surprise was introduced into the election of the St. Louis University football captain for 1935, when Harold Hudson, halfback, was chosen by the 30 lettermen at a meeting yesterday afternoon at the Billikens' gymnasium. There had been some talk that Henry "Red" Krause, hard-working center, would be given the honor, but he missed out on the second ballot. On the first ballot, Krause, Hudson, John Barbaglia, a center, and Carl Wood, a halfback, were the four considered. The two with the fewest votes, Barbaglia and Wood, were then dropped, and Hudson won by a slight margin on the next ballot. Hudson has been a reserve halfback for the past two seasons, so that, when next year rolls around he will be a senior. He is enrolled in the Commerce and Finance School. Hudson received his early football training under James F. Cook, Soldan High School coach. The captain-elect who graduated from the West End school in 1932, is the son of Mrs. N. Hudson of 4956 Washington boulevard.

BEARS DEFEAT STARS IN WESLEY HOUSE SOCCER

The Bears blanked the Stars, 1-0, and the Blue Eagles turned back the Lions, 2-0, in games played in the junior division of the Wesley House Soccer League last night. In the senior division, the Eagles trounced the Hawkeys, 8-1, with Bill Droge scoring five goals. The Billikens beat the Ramblers 7-2, and the Aces won from the Dukes, 5-0, in other senior games.

COUNTY LEAGUE REORGANIZATION PLANNED; U. CITY MAY BE DROPPED

A committee was appointed by the board of directors of the St. Louis County High School League yesterday afternoon, to consider suggestions for regrouping the schools of the league for athletic purposes. Miss Julia B. Griswold, secretary of the organization, announced yesterday, following a special meeting of the board held at Clayton High School. The committee is to report back to the next league meeting, the date of which has not been set. One result of this action by the board, was the withdrawal by Mr. J. E. Baker, principal of University City High School, of his request written to Mr. E. R. Adams, principal of Maplewood, that athletic relations be broken off between the two schools. The calling of the special session comes as the aftermath of a football season which saw four schools, Maplewood, University City, Normandy and Webster Groves, dominate football in the league. Those four schools won all games played with the other five, Kirkwood, Wellston, Clayton, Ritenour and St. Charles, by one-sided scores. "Too Much Football Emphasis." "This fact, the prospect of University City and Maplewood severing athletic relations due to the intense rivalry between the two schools, and also the feeling of some principals that football was receiving too much emphasis have convinced many of the County League officials that some action is necessary. While none of the coaches or officials of the league would consent to be quoted as to what action might be expected, the general feeling seems to be that a realignment of the schools will be made as follows: Kirkwood, Clayton, Wellston, St. Charles and Ritenour in one group; Maplewood, Normandy and Webster Groves in a "Big Three" group; University City to play an independent schedule.

If some such action is taken, all contracts would be abrogated, and new schedules would have to be drawn by each school. This would mean that the basketball schedule, which begins Friday, would be scrapped, as far as league play is concerned, and that each school would have to draft another schedule independently. If the league's setup as now planned is discarded, it would mean that the schools would return to the haphazard system in use prior to 1930, when the first of the present league schedules was arranged. Before 1930 each school scheduled its games without regard to the league, this making it impossible to decide a county championship in any sport.

This is what most of the schools are in favor of returning to, for they feel that sports are being emphasized too much and that championships inspire a bitter feeling such as have arisen between Maplewood and University City.

FALCARO, PIN STAR, WILL APPEAR HERE

Ed Quasebarth, proprietor of the Cherokee Bowling Alleys, announced last night the signing of the services of Joe Falcaro of New York, one of the country's leading bowlers, for Jan. 12 and 13, at the Cherokee Alleys. Arrangements to match Falcaro with some of the leading bowlers of the city are under way. Falcaro possesses many outstanding marks, including the record of 27 "300" games during the course of his 28 years of bowling. He also set a world's record average mark of 255 for 30 games at the Capitol Alleys in New York. In exhibition tours throughout the country from 1925 to 1934, he averaged 220 2/3 pins for 8266 games.

Bears Working on New Pass Combinations for Battle With Mustangs

Football fans who have followed the fortunes of Washington University this season and have watched the Bears on offense and defense "ain't seen nuthin' yet." Of course, the basic Coselman system of play remains but, for the post-season game with Southern Methodist University, Saturday, so many variations have been introduced that the whole thing shapes up like a new system. Plays which have not figured in the Washington attack this season will be used and, incidentally, some of these pass-combinations may prove to be as surprising to the Methodists as they will to the spectators. Then, there's the matter of pass-defense. The Dallas collegians are known as "pass' fools" and it is said, have a hankering for shooting heavens down the center. Such being the case, Coach Conzelmann, who, with Gale Bullman, scouted the Methodists in their game with Baylor, decided that the defense the Bears used against Billiken passes in the Thanksgiving day game, would be useless. So, look for a much tighter, more centralized formation when a Methodist pass is attempted.

Without going into details, the Bears are working on a pass-play which, if it works, will make that famous Colgate play when seven men handled the ball look like a simple formation. There are only 25 lettermen in the 1934 Mustang squad. Most of them, it is said, will be back for football next year. The Rock Church High School Girls' basketball team will open its season against the Polish Roman Catholic Union team tonight on the Rock High floor.

Basketball Game Tonight

Although Captain Harry Brown of the Bears didn't take part in yesterday's workout, he will be ready for action Saturday though it may be decided to let Bob Hudgens open the contest. Brown, however, is sure to play. Moreover, Conzelmann's team will be at full strength as none of the Bears were any more than banged up with bruises as a result of the Thanksgiving day with St. Louis U.

From Dallas, reports are to the effect that all the Southern Methodist crimples, including Wilson, an All-America backfield honorable mention choice, will make the trip to St. Louis and will definitely take part in the battle.

Washington will be outweighed about nine pounds per man, the team-averages being approximately: Washington 181, S. M. U. 190, with the preponderance of weight in the Southern's backfield.

Coaches Conzelmann and Bullman look upon the Methodists as the best team they have been called upon to meet this season. Yet, better than Illinois because the Southern's defense is a better one and the backfield is considered as good. In the Methodist backfield are Wilson, who weighs only about 138 pounds, but can do anything in a football way—and does it; and Eacus, a 235-pound fullback, who, last Saturday, against Texas Christian, played the entire 60 minutes and made a wonderful showing. Also, S. M. U. as more man-power than the Illinois; they are more of the Minnesota type or like Ohio State—big, fast and powerful.

Coach Ray Morrison of S. M. U. will lead his team into St. Louis Friday morning and work them out in the afternoon. At noon, the Methodists' coach will be guest of honor at a luncheon at the University Club, tendered by the St. Louis alumni of Vanderbilt University. Morrison played football at "Vandy." He has been lately mentioned as coach to succeed Dan McGugin at his Alma Mater.

Because the Methodists wear green uniforms, the Bears, Saturday, will be clad in the familiar scarlet of previous Washington teams. Coach Morrison has reason to remember Gale Bullman well. The Bears' assistant coach, while a member of the West Virginia Wesleyan team, once defeated the Methodists when, with the score 7 to 3 against the West Virginians, he

MELILLO, WITH .981, TOPS SECOND BASEMEN IN FIELDING

BROWNS 6TH IN TEAM FIGURES; KAMM IS LEADER FOR 8TH TIME

Oscar Melillo, the Browns' second baseman, although he did not handle as many chances as the year before, topped the pivot station guardians of the American League for the second straight year, with a percentage of .981, official averages released today show. Melillo in 141 games, had 412 putouts, 462 assists and committed 17 errors. He had more putouts than any other second baseman and worked in 110 double plays to show the way to his rivals in this respect.

Melillo was the only member of Rogers Hornsby's troupe to lead at this position.

The Browns, as a team, finished in sixth place with a mark of .969. Washington and Detroit tied for the lead with .974. The combined fielding percentage of the eight clubs in the league was .970.

Kamm Sets New Record. The fielding leaders in the respective positions, other than second base, were as follows: Zekke Bonura, White Sox, first base, .985; Wally Kamm, Indians, third, .978; Lynn Lary, Red Sox, shortstop, .965; Sam Byrd, Al Simmons and Fred Schulte, outfielders, and Rick Ferrell, Red Sox, catcher, with .960. A total of 16 pitchers went through the campaign without an error.

It was the eighth consecutive year that Kamm has topped the third sacker, establishing a new league record.

Johnny Burnett, the infielder recently obtained by the Browns in a trade with the Indians, fielded .981 in 42 games at third place. Bruce Campbell, who went to the Cleveland club in the deal, was the worst fielding outfielder in the circuit. He finished with .935, making 17 errors in 261 chances.

Coach Ray Jackson's Alton High School team was officially crowned 1934 football champion of the Madison-St. Clair High School Athletic Conference at a meeting of coaches and officials here last night at Granite City. The official 1934 all-star team was selected and plans made for basketball, tennis, baseball and wrestling.

Paul Grigby, Granite City, was elected president of the conference, while C. C. Stadmann, Wood River, and J. F. Snodgrass, Collinsville, were elected vice-president and secretary-treasurer, respectively. Members of the executive committee include Coaches Jack Nolen, East St. Louis, and Ray Jackson, Alton, while the other two members are Sam Sprout, Madison, and C. C. Stadmann, Wood River. R. D. Johnson, Granite City, will serve as statistician.

Five schools, East St. Louis, Granite City, Madison, Wood River, and Alton, were selected to represent the conference in the basketball season. The all-star football team as selected by the coaches, includes four members of the championship Alton eleven, while Wood River was next in line placing three men. Collinsville, Granite City, Madison and East St. Louis each placed one player.

Each coach selected two teams with his choice for the first team.

SPORT SALAD

By DAMON KERBY
(Batting for L. C. Davis)

The Warden was a Poor Scout.

Frank is a good scout, but this is absolutely the first time he uncovered a game warden. Imagine his surprise!

A Redbird scout's idea of a swell vacation: scouting the brush for birds.

Speaking of birds; that was, indeed, a strange job given those relief workers—driving the starlings away from Washington. It may turn out to be a tough job, too, but the feeling seems to be general that it won't be so hard as was driving out the lame ducks.

Tit for Tat. The public's strategy of battle against the starlings is to keep 'em awake until they leave, which makes something or other even, in view of the fact that the lame ducks used to put the public to sleep.

It might be remarked in passing on birds, that the St. Louis Eagles are not so hot on the ice.

Most eagles fly far up in the sky, soaring with wings outspread. Our Eagles swoop to the bottom of the loop and the magnate goes in the red.

No Game! Missouri and St. Louis U. were gunning for each other during the football season, but there will be nothing doing in 1935. St. Louis U. has already got the drop.

Being dropped from the Mizou schedule is no disgrace for the Billikens, in view of the explanatory statement from Chester Brewer, which set forth that "St. Louis U. team is just too heavy for us." That is a good excuse for dropping practically anything or anybody.

Pond Is Placid. Some observers thought they detected that Ducky Pond was just a bit chilly when it was suggested a year ago that he wouldn't last as Yale coach. Even if this were true—and we're not saying it is—

Neighborhood A. C. Wins. The Neighborhood Athletic Club scored 29 field goals in running up a total of 60 points to defeat the Baptist Center basketball five, 60-15, last night, in a senior division game in the Neighborhood Association League. The Royal Falcons beat the Wapitis, 43-14, and the Nabs won from the Royal Americans, 39-15.

he had the good sense not to freeze up.

Dempsey's Down.

Jack Dempsey was obtained to referee a wrestling free-for-all in which four specimens, listed as Gollia Max, Art Flynn, Cowboy Hughes and Chuck Montana, were to participate. They gave Jack a license to referee the affair, but what he needed more was a lasso, a brick, and a big game gun.

Ouch!

On the same mat card was to appear one "Rough House Hagan, the Weeping Wild Man of Texas." He weeps in pain, the customers weep in joy and the promoters weep in the profits.

"Seven Knox Players Get Away From It All In June."

In other words, they are about all Siwash up.

They Can Take It.

Twenty-four of the Knox boys received letters. A mere "K" in this case was really not enough. They should have given "em a "K O by," or if that was too elaborate, a large block "X" to mark the spot where they fell.

The squad went through a signal drill yesterday afternoon and seemed in tip-top shape.

The Waco authorities were broached late Monday night and accepted the conditions yesterday. Then permission to play the game

CLEVELAND HIGH SQUAD OF 21 TO MAKE WACO TRIP

By Harold Tuthill.

A squad of 21 players has been selected by Coach Bert E. Fenenga as the Cleveland team which will meet the Waco, Texas, High School in an inter-sectional post-season football contest to be played at Waco next Saturday afternoon. The squad will depart tomorrow night at 6:30 o'clock and arrive at Waco Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in time for a workout.

Among the 21 who will make the trip are the 11 starters. In this group are Gene Brew and Woodrow Sweetin, ends; Frank Tombridge and Art Paerber, tackles; Sebastian Hertling and Neil Green, guards; John Lamping, center; Charles Buffa, quarterback; Russ Tongay and Ken Harris, halfbacks, and Ed Pfeiffer, fullback. Sweetin, Tombridge, Lamping and Harris were chosen for the city "All-Star" team.

The reserves will be Frank Fenenga, the coach's son, quarterback; Carl Fink and Dale Pennington, halfbacks; Norman Horton, fullback, and Fred Kauten, Lynn Gannier, Tom Hatchard, Tom Birnie, John Shea and Jack Bremer, linemen.

WACO, Tex.—Jana Humberto, 210, Mexico, drew Scotty Dawkins, 220, San Antonio.

NEW YORK—Leo Wallick, Germany, threw Joe Farrell, Italy, Ed "Don" George, Buffalo, N. Y., placed Sam Jennings, Oklahoma.

was granted Cleveland by Dr. John Rush Powell, assistant superintendent in charge of high schools at the Board of Education, yesterday afternoon. Approval of the game was also given by Carl Burris, secretary of the Missouri State High School Athletic Association.

Cleveland dropped its first three games, one to McKinley, and then went on to defeat the other four members to tie for the league title and Missouri Military Academy, in a conference contest. Cleveland won the title in 1932 and repeated last year.

In winning five of its eight games, the Carondelet school accumulated 113 points to 62 for its opponents. Only two touchdowns were scored against the team in the last five games, both by Beaumont.

CASEY RESIGNS AS HEAD COACH OF HARVARD'S FOOTBALL TEAM

By the Associated Press.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Dec. 5.—Harvard, for the first time in its three score years of intercollegiate football history, is out in the open market today, bidding for a head coach.

The resignation of Eddie Casey, officially announced last night, snapped the line of graduate coaches that goes back to 1890, when the Crimson, after trusting the direction of its football teams to captains for 16 years, decided to appoint George Stewart of the class of 1884 as its first head football coach.

Every one of Stewart's successors has been a Harvard man. After Stewart came Everett Lake, W. A. Brooks, R. W. Emmons, Lorin F. Deland, of "flying wedge" fame, D. G. Waters, W. Cameron Forbes, Ben Dibblee, W. T. Reid, Edgar N. Wrightington, Joshua Crane and finally the immortal Percy Haughton, whose teams were seldom beaten from 1908 until 1919, when he turned the reins over to Bob

In 1925 Arnie Horween became head coach and in 1931 Casey took hold.

Casey's resignation was not unexpected. For many weeks Harvard football camps have been flooded with rumors linking the names of prominent non-graduates with the Harvard job. The name of Lou Little, whose Columbia contract has not expired, has been mentioned most frequently. Andy Kerr of Colgate, Harry Kipke of Michigan, Adams Walsh of Notre Dame, and Myles Lane of Dartmouth, Casey's assistants this year, W. A. "Navy Bill" Ingram, who resigned at California a few days ago, Joe McKenney of Boston College, and a host of others have been cited as possibilities, probably against the wishes of most of them.

Most of the higher priced career coaches, for several years, have been shaking their heads over the Harvard situation, which is far from being as dark as they have been painting it. It is probably true that Casey's salary was a bit less than $8000, but Harvard, if it wishes, can go much higher than that and still live up to the "Big Three" agreement that keeps coaching salaries down to faculty figures, for several professors were recently forced into the $12,000 class.

Cross Country for Game.

Fifty ardent followers of the St. Mary's College team of California crossed the continent to root for the Gaels in the big inter-sectional game with Fordham in New York.

Seven Members of The Fighting Pitt Team Are Married

By the Associated Press.

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 5.—SUCCEEDING where Notre Dame and Southern California failed, Dan Cupid has charged through the Pitt football team and "taken out" seven players from the bachelor line.

The Post-Gazette says a checkup last night disclosed that seven members of the team, which closed its season Thanksgiving, after defeating all rivals but Minnesota, have been married, most of them secretly and some of them for more than a year.

When questioned, the following promptly admitted they are married men:

Harvey Rooker, star end; Miller Munjas, varsity quarterback; Karl Eifert, end; Walter Balesia, sub quarterback; Frank Kutz, sub lineman; Herbert Randour, halfback, and Leo Malarkey, a reserve back.

Kingdom House Wrestlers Win

The Kingdom House wrestling squad defeated the Alton Y. M. C. A. team, 12-10, last night at Alton, Ivan Oberdan, Pete Isom, Tom Smegner and Gus Wisbar won time advantage victories for the Kingdom House. Rudy Struhard and Bert Kleeman won fall-victories for Alton.

Oliver Cadillac Trade-In Mart Surrenders to Public Demand

WHO said "nobody shoots at Santa Claus?" Who said there was no Santa Claus? As far as you and you—and YOU—are concerned, good old Santy was "bagged" this year by the well-known Oliver Cadillac Trade-In Mart at 4111 Forest Park Blvd.

No mere words can be summoned to express the tremendous importance to the motoring public of this sensational sale of DEPENDABLE, GUARANTEED USED CARS—cars of almost every make and model—cars priced so low they'll sell on sight—and a few in four figures for the discriminating motorist seeking pleasure in the higher brackets. $29,000 worth of cars to be sacrificed!

Because words lose their usefulness in a bonafide sale of this character, it literally becomes a "Speechless Sale." We won't need to put on a sales talk. When you're brought face to face with an automobile of obviously true and undisguised value—the car will sell itself.

We want our floors cleaned up by Christmas, and we're willing to pay for the job by offering you the chance to come in and match your dollars and terms with a good car—and drive home with our Seven-Day Guarantee.

Within This Price Range Awaits YOUR Santy!

You can't smoke price—but you can enjoy QUALITY

SOME cigars have cut prices—to give old standards at lowered costs. But a 1929 model is not apt to be a bargain at any price. Other cigars have improved Quality—to give greater value and satisfaction than ever before. The El Producto you buy today gives more real enjoyment at ten cents than cigars of double the price offered a few short years ago. Never before have you had such Quality in blending mildness with taste, such evenness and smoothness in smoking quality. For years El Producto has been raising the standards of fine cigar making. Today—You'll find that El Producto offers a real smoking enjoyment that exceeds even your fondest expectations of what a good smoke should be. Prove it for yourself at the nearest cigar counter.

Bantam Stars to Meet on Arena Amateur Card

Armand Stilla, dynamic little Italian-American ringman, of Springfield, Ill., who captured the National A. A. U. bantam title at the Arena last winter, will return next week to the scene of his championship triumph to battle Gerald Mathieu of Chicago, in a five-round bout announced by Matchmaker Willie Miller today as an inter-city feature of the Olympic Athletic Club's first amateur boxing tournament, the night of Dec. 12.

Stilla has been credited with 98 victories and has dropped only six decisions since he started boxing three years ago. His record for the last year embraces 39 triumphs in 41 contests and includes three victories over Troy Bellani, victor over Tommy Barry, National flyweight titleholder, in the Golden Gloves classic at Chicago last season.

Mathieu is rated one of the foremost boxers of his weight and inches in the Chicago district, having captured the World Fair championship title last year and runner-up laurels in this year's Central A. A. U. title competition. He has scored 16 victories in 18 bouts since Jan. 1, redeeming his two setbacks in return matches with Stanley Stockins and Jesse Robinson Jr.

In a letter transmitting the list of nominations to Thomas N. Dysart, president, Wells said the willingness of business and professional men to serve as officers or directors of the Chamber of Commerce was a great compliment to the organization.

AAA RESUMES CATTLE-BUYING IN REGIONS LACKING IN FEED

$17,000,000 Left in Fund for Purchase of 1,200,000 Head in Drought Areas.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—The Agricultural Adjustment Administration last night announced resumption of cattle purchases in drought areas, with 1,200,000 head, costing approximately $17,000,000, to be bought for movement to regions that can provide feed.

A clearing house has been set up at Kansas City and State extension officials and county agents where feed supplies are sufficient are notifying farmers of the plan.

It was announced that the total of Federal funds for drought cattle buying had been fixed at $115,822,000, including purchases of 7,319,800 head totaling $98,351,600 certified through Nov. 27. Buying recently was suspended until stock was taken of the need of future movement of cattle.

Amounts spent so far include: Arkansas, $1,108,974; Illinois, $42,568; Missouri, $6,974,910.

A post mortem examination indicated that the child had died from hemorrhage of the brain caused by external violence.

The baby was dead when the aunt took it to a doctor's office. She was charged with beating the child.

SOCIETY FOR BLIND SPONSORS NEW CLINIC

Vocational Adjustment for Those With Defective Sight Object of Work.

Creation of a Vocational Adjustment Clinic for the blind and others with defective vision was announced last night as the principal point in the expanded 1935 program of the St. Louis Society for the Blind at the twenty-third annual meeting of the society at Washington University Medical School auditorium, Scott and Euclid avenues.

The clinic, which will be sponsored jointly by the society, the St. Louis University School of Medicine, and FERA, will seek to provide adequate analysis of the needs of persons with defective vision and their special training for, and placement in, vocational activities.

Other features of the proposed program are designed to improve the social status of the blind with reference to family adjustments, housing, relief, and education.

Life membership on the honorary board of the society was voted for Mrs. A. F. Harris, A. F. Barnes and W. H. Claggett, in recognition of valuable and sustained service. John Bracken, Miss Pauline Boisligne, J. A. Frey and J. Harris Rehme were elected to the board of directors. Dr. W. H. Luedde of the St. Louis University School of Medicine spoke instead of Dr. Edward Jackson of the University of Colorado, who was delayed in arriving.

A "THIS CHRISTMAS" CLUB

● You may have joined a lot of Christmas Clubs in past years but were you ever a member of one like this?

THE ordinary Christmas saving that you begin in December is in preparation, not for this year but for the following Christmas a year away. It is too late now to save for this Christmas but if you have been unable to put anything away that is no reason why you must miss the joy of Christmas giving.

The plan we offer you now is the old time Christmas Club in reverse. Instead of starting to save now and having the money next Christmas you have the money now and pay it back, weekly or monthly from now until next December. That is why we call it a "This Christmas" Club. You have the benefit of the money this Christmas instead of next.

Very simple, but very effective if because of some of the many reasons that keep people from saving you are facing a moneyless Christmas. The major qualifications necessary to make you eligible to join are that you have a good credit record and a regular income, so you can qualify under one of our lending plans.

There's a charge, of course, but you wouldn't expect to have your Christmas money on terms as favorable as the person who had saved it—would you? If that were possible there would never be any incentive to save.

Come in. Perhaps we can help you and those others you are thinking about. Perhaps we can help you all have a happier, merrier Christmas.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—Many not only is rearmament assistance of American munitions makers, but to export some types of munitions, it was testified in a session of the Senate armament subcommittee. The exhibits tended to the rearming of Germany with a general increase in armaments, with makers of war supplies over the business. A company was a high observer.

"Rearming of Germany," Senator Arthur C. (Rep.) of Michigan, the outset of today's evidence to be presented concerned with "the Germany and Austria integrity of the Versailles involved," he said.

As to whether or not Austria had the arm, he said, the committee was not concerned. But to show what had happened, especially with showing the power of nations makers.

Declaring it "unconscionable" the former allies who rearm the Michigan, the only alternative to that the munitions makers sufficiently powerful to many against the wish of the world.

He read a Paris newspaper article that the French, in asking for large reparations, had informed the Deputies that Germany are faster and more efficient. Vandenberg, American and British participated in building present air fleet.

In 1924, W. A. Taylor, European agent of E. F. Housh Co., largest American of war materials, K. Y. Casey, head of the smokeless powder department, confidential information session showed a general in European armaments certain group of armaments hogging most of it. He listed them as Americans of England; Scotland, of France, and the German.

Taylor advised the stay out of the field, as to grab part of the business he regarded as "an European affair." Casey testified, the European custom of the Government of Poland buying rifles.

Taylor also obtained in 1926, he reported, the firm was manufacturing and selling it to the United States. Casey said the powder had been legally made for long pieces. In the same year, Taylor remarked sort of thing keeps Americans and Czechoslovakians back in the business.

Nothing We Can Do. Unfortunately, he said, the United States is not a party to the Versailles treaty, nothing we can do about it.

"The right of the United States to the Nobel Peace Prize," he said, "is a matter of the United States and the Nobel Peace Prize."

Taylor reported—and he said the matter was an effective protest many's course lay in the United States, certain German power makers. They had in fact, he said, been in the United States.

Hoover Took Hand in Arms Restriction. The committee yesterday heard evidence in a show a concerted effort by makers in America to thwart the Geneva Convention.

DISCLOSURE FROM DU PONT RECORDS

U. S. and British Firms Sharing in General Revival of Munitions Trade in Europe.

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—Germany not only is rearming, with the assistance of American and British munitions makers, but is even able to export some types of war materials, it was testified at today's session of the Senate inquiry into the armament industry. Much of the evidence consisted of correspondence from the files of E. I. du Pont de Nemours Co. of Delaware.

The exhibits tended to show that the rearming of Germany coincided with a general increase in European armaments, with the large makers of war supplies scrapping over the business. The du Pont company was a highly interested observer.

"Rearming of Germany," Senator Arthur Vandenberg (Rep.) of Michigan, announced at the outset of today's hearing, that evidence to be presented would be concerned with "the rearming of Germany and Austria." "The integrity of the Versailles treaty is involved," he said.

As to whether or not Germany and Austria had the right to rearm, he said, the committee was not concerned. But it did intend to show what had actually happened, especially with a view to showing the power of the munitions makers.

Declaring it "unconceivable" that the former allies wished Germany to rearm, the Michigan Senator said the only alternative conclusion was that the munitions makers were sufficiently powerful to rearm Germany against the wish of the whole world.

He read a Paris news dispatch stating that the French air minister, in asking for larger appropriations, had informed the Chamber of Deputies that Germany's planes are faster and more efficient than France's. Vandenberg said both American and British firms had participated in building Germany's present air fleet.

General Increase in Arms. In 1924, W. A. Taylor, chief European agent of E. I. du Pont de Nemours Co., largest American maker of war materials, wrote to K. R. Y. Casey, head of the company's smokeless powder department, that confidential information in his possession showed a general increase in European armaments, with a certain group of armament makers hogging most of the business.

He listed them as Armstrong-Vickers of England; Schneider-Creolot of France, and the Nobel concern.

Taylor advised the company to stay out of the field, as any attempt to grab part of the business would be regarded as "an interference in European affairs." At that time, Casey testified, the company's principal European customer was the Government of Poland, which was buying rifles.

Taylor also obtained information in 1926, he reported, that a German firm was manufacturing rifle powder and selling it to Turkey, in violation of the treaty of Versailles. Casey said the powder could have been legally made for use in sporting pieces. In the same letter, however, Taylor remarked that "if this sort of thing keeps up, the Germans and Czechoslovaks will be back in the business."

"Nothing We Can Do." Unfortunately, he added, "the United States is not a signatory to the Versailles treaty, so there is nothing we can do about it." He thought "the right people to take up" was the Nobel Company of London. But again, unfortunately, he feared that the relations between Nobel and the German interests were so friendly as to preclude that. The French munitions makers might do something, he suggested.

Taylor reported—and Casey concurred—that the main obstacle to an effective protest against Germany's course lay in the connection between Nobel, of London, and certain German powder manufacturers. They had interlocking directorships.

Never Took Hand in Modifying Arms Restrictions. The committee yesterday uncovered evidence in an attempt to show a concerted effort by arms makers in America and abroad to obstruct the Geneva conference.

Women's Clubs, Banks, Boy Scouts And Commerce Chambers Used To Spread Utility Propaganda

Federal Trade Commission Report Tells of Non-Interest Bearing Deposits to Get Bankers' Support and Aid Given Many Other Groups.

By RAYMOND P. BRANDT,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—How the privately owned electric and gas utilities used "outside agencies" such as chambers of commerce, women's clubs, banks, insurance companies, radio programs and state public service commissioners to carry out their extensive propaganda campaigns is related today in the Federal Trade Commission's fourth installment of its report to the Senate on its investigation of the power industry.

Earlier installments have told of the objectives of the campaigns against Government operation and Federal regulation of utilities and of the propaganda spread through the press and among schools and educators.

The report lists the Chamber of Commerce of the United States as one of the "related organizations" of the National Electric Light Association, the organization of the electric power industry which was most active in the propaganda campaigns.

Women's Clubs Get $20,000. For the nine months preceding March 31, 1928, the report says, dues and contributions to other organizations amounting to $38,886 were made by the N. E. L. A., of which $20,000 went to the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

Commenting on relations between the utilities and the national and state Chambers of Commerce, the report observes: "From the initiation of the Public Relations Section of the N. E. L. A. in 1920 up to 1928, the active backing of the utility program by both the national and state chambers of commerce was sought and procured."

"Among other things, the utility associations conducted an active campaign to bring about the reelection of P. H. Gadsden as a director of the United States Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Gadsden was vice-president of the United Gas Improvement Co., Major Alexander Forward, secretary-manager of the American Gas Association, sent out to member companies a circular letter directing their attention to the reelection of Mr. Gadsden's re-election. Various state associations and state committees were also active in the campaign.

"The report says the N. E. L. A. and its State Information Committee Life Insurance Co. of the first of these pamphlets 6,000,000 copies were sent out and of the revised edition more than 10,000,000 went to policy holders. The report says the utility message would thus be placed in the hands of 21,000,000 policy holders.

The report also says that the author of pamphlets sent to policy holders as messengers in the Haley Fiske of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. Of the first of these pamphlets 6,000,000 copies were sent out and of the revised edition more than 10,000,000 went to policy holders. The report says the utility message would thus be placed in the hands of 21,000,000 policy holders.

Under the heading "Contacts with State Commissions," the report charges that in some instances the relations were "very close" and that "the utilities advised and even drafted regulations and forms for state commissions." It adds: "The commissions were paid fees for making addresses before utility conventions or other meetings, and in one instance a fee of $1000 was paid."

Citing a letter from George E. Lewis, director of the Denver offices of the utilities, the commission says that contacts with state commissioners evidently were to be treated "with the utmost secrecy." The report continues: "This attitude was maintained."

GALE DELAYS ICE-MAKING ATTEMPT IN TROPICAL SEA

Prof. Georges Claude's Ship Blown Out of Position While Laying Base for Ocean Tube.

By the Associated Press.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Dec. 5.—A gale yesterday delayed Prof. Georges Claude's attempt to make ice in tropical seas through the action of hot-surface and cold sub-surface waters.

His ship, the Tunisie, was 62 miles off shore attempting to sink a 20-ton pig iron base as foundation through which the cold water from the bottom of the sea would be raised to the surface.

The crew had worked four days to place the metal sphere, 30 feet in diameter, in position. Then, the Tunisie was blown off the position and the huge sphere was dragged out of place. It later was raised by electric elevators attached to a surface buoy.

"We had a grand battle, finally drawing the base up through the electric elevator attached to the buoy intended to hold up the tube at the surface," Claude, 64-year-old French inventor, said. Favorable weather is awaited to make another attempt to lower the base.

Claude's process consists of making warm water from the surface of tropical seas boil by introducing it into a vacuum, utilizing the steam to run turbines, and then condensing it with cold water drawn from the depths.

Wilhelm Furtwaengler and Erich Kleiber Resign Because of Nazi Domination.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Dec. 5.—Two of Berlin's leading musicians have quit their posts because of dissatisfaction with Nazi domination of cultural life.

The dismissal of Helmuth Bruckner, director of the Berlin Philharmonic Orchestra, conductor of the Municipal Opera House and vice-president of the Chamber of Culture. He had been criticized for asking: "What would become of German music if political denunciation should interfere with art?"

His resignation was followed by the withdrawal of Erich Kleiber, famous composer and conductor, from contracts with the Opera and the Philharmonic. Kleiber explained "Herr Furtwaengler and I agreed several weeks ago we would stick together. That now means a matter of honor."

Kiroff's Ashes to Be Placed in Kremlin Wall Near Lenin's Tomb at Funeral Tomorrow.

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, Dec. 5.—Hundreds of thousands of workers stood in the line outside Union House today, waiting to pass the bier of Sergei Kiroff, assassinated Soviet leader.

A national funeral will be held for him tomorrow and his ashes placed in the Kremlin wall near the tomb of Nicolai Lenin.

It was estimated that 2,000,000 persons will have filed past the bier before the time set for the cremation.

The brain of Kiroff, secretary of the Central Executive Committee, whose skull was fractured by an assassin's bullet at Leningrad Saturday, will be given to the Leningrad Scientific Institute for study.

A new decree of the Central Executive Committee, aimed at terrorism, assures a speedy trial of persons charged with offenses against Soviet leaders. Seventy-one "white Russians" face such a trial, with death the penalty on conviction.

Secrecy surrounded the status of Leonid Nicoloff, held by the police as Kiroff's assassin. When he would be brought to trial was not announced, but the new law provides that all investigations of terrorism must be completed within 10 days, so disclosure of his fate and that of possible associates can not be delayed long.

The removal of F. D. Medved, chief of the Leningrad province Commissariat of Home Affairs, in charge of security, with six of his principal aids, and the enactment of the new laws against terrorists, have intensified the public demand for information about the crime.

Maxim Gorky, the author, wrote: "I cannot help saying the enemy's attempt not only speaks of his villainess, but of our own insufficient vigilance."

The Cheka, which formerly dealt with terrorist activities, was merged into the Commissariat of Home Affairs last summer.

$2.84 A POUND PAID SHIP LINE FOR MAILS

Further Testimony in Government's Investigation of Pacific Contracts.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—The Oceanic Steamship Co.'s mail contract over route No. 24, from San Francisco to Honolulu, Pango Pango and Sydney, was investigated yesterday in the Government inquiry into ocean mail contracts. Oceanic is owned by the Matson Navigation Co.

W. C. O'Brien, Government counsel, brought out that the Government had paid Oceanic between 1928 and June 30 of this year a total of $4,819,212.88 on its mail contract. The mail carried, it paid for on the basis of the United States poundage rate, would have cost $555,792.

The Oceanic contract called for construction of two new ships. It also called for an estimated payment to Oceanic of $8,931,413 in 10 years.

Oceanic has constructed three new ships, the Monterey, 18,017 tons, with a speed of 20 knots, and the Mariposa, 18,017 tons, with a speed of 21 knots, which together cost $16,666,250, and the Lurline, 18,021 tons, with a speed of 20 knots, which cost $7,966,598. The Lurline was sold to the parent company at cost, but still is used occasionally on the mail route.

George F. Smith, postal inspector, testified that mail carried on route 24 under the contract cost an average of $2.84 for letters and 28 cents for a pound of parcel post. During the fiscal year ended June 30, Oceanic carried on its route 91,413 pounds of printed matter, and 263,212 pounds of parcel post originating in the United States, and 34,277 pounds of letters, 315,498 pounds of printed matter and 2910 pounds of parcel post classified as closed foreign mail.

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 5.—An order from a Japanese steel company for a rolling mill capable of turning out 70 tons of 16-gauge sheet steel in eight hours was received yesterday by the Lewis Foundry and Machine Co.

The mill, a 68-inch "three high" type with tables, motor and controls, will be driven by a 500-horsepower motor. Delivery will be in 10 to 12 weeks. The Lewis company is a subsidiary of the Blaw-Knox Co.

SAYS 'INTERESTS' SEEK CONTROL OF MISSOURI HOUSE

Candidate for Speaker Had Utilities and Breweries in Mind When He Made Charge.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 5.—A charge that "certain special interests" were attempting to dictate the organization of the House of Representatives of the 1935 Missouri Legislature was made by State Representative E. W. Bennett of Salem, Dent County, in a statement issued here yesterday afternoon. Bennett is one of three active candidates for the Speakership.

Bennett did not directly name the public utilities or breweries in connection with the charge of attempted domination of the House leadership, in his prepared statement, but later said he had these groups in mind.

In connection with this charge he said, "as a Democrat, looking to the welfare of our party in the coming presidential election, now less than two years away, I realize we are facing a critical situation. If we expect to succeed, we must organize the next House with the welfare of the Democratic Party and the State and its people in mind, and we cannot do so if any special interests dictate the organization."

Reports of Utility Plans. Reports have been persistent that the public utilities and breweries were taking a hand in attempting to control the organization of the next Legislature, in anticipation of considerable public utility legislation and a fight over revision of the State's liquor control law.

Political gossip is to the effect the bulk of this support will go to Representative Leo T. Daniels, Democrat, of Reynolds County, one of the three speakership candidates. Daniels has denied that he sought the support of these groups.

Friends of Daniels are claiming he has 77 of the 102 Democratic House members pledged to him for speakership, including the 19 St. Louis members and the 10 from Jackson County, but other candidates dispute the claims. Daniels backers started early with heavy clackers and the figures have been mounting with each announcement. Under past practices election of the Speaker has been controlled by a majority vote in the organization caucus of the majority party. This vote, by custom, binds the whole majority party in the formal election.

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare; never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Railroads and Their Employees.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
YOUR editorial on the Railroad Retirement Act was indeed a disappointment to thousands of readers.

Certainly a great corporation owes as much to its decaying manpower as it owes to depreciated rolling stock, worn-out machinery, etc. Why should it profit a railroad to repair a battered box car, but ruin it to provide for a battered worker?

The substance of the decision of the District of Columbia trial court, in holding the Railroad Retirement Act unconstitutional, is that Congress has the power to establish a compulsory railroad retirement system, but that this cannot be extended to cover officers and employees claimed by the railroads not to be engaged in interstate commerce, or to permit recognition of any service before the plan is adopted, in fixing the amount of the pension or annuity. The gratuity plans that have been in operation on many of the country's major systems now cover officers and others complained of as not justly entitled to pensions, and the scheme is based upon prior service.

The act is also held unconstitutional by the court because it takes property without due process of law. We believe it is a due process. We believe the owners of property have not a constitutional right to use their property in such a manner as to deprive their employees of the enjoyment of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. We believe in the logical and practicable operation of a constitutional government whereby its "constitutional law, at any given time, is the then current theory of what ought to be, and what ought not to be done under the Constitution; a legalistic expression of the prevailing political and economic philosophy." We believe this philosophy will stand paramount as a guidepost to the higher courts.

The financial condition of the railroads is indeed regrettable; it is a complex problem presenting many angles. The President evidently was thinking of these complex conditions when he made his Salt Lake City speech, Sept. 17, 1932, saying in part: "We cannot let our fundamental policies be blocked by screens of corporate complexities. . . . Transportation is not a mechanized service. It is a service of human beings whose lives are worthy of even more intelligent care than that necessary to preserve the physical mechanisms which they operate."

A large majority of the railroads are now paying pensions, in some instances more than what is offered in the new law, which proposes to absorb the present plans while the employees will pay a contributing part. The contributory feature is proof conclusive that railroad employees do not want charity but only a just reward for long and faithful service in the nation's major industry.

English vs. American Justice.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

RECENTLY had the pleasure of listening to John Galsworthy's play, "Justice," on the radio. It was splendid entertainment and certainly portrayed the stern unyielding sense of justice of the English courts. While the English courts have this reputation and could stand some humanizing, I was struck by the amazing contrast, especially as justice is rendered in our St. Louis police courts.

What has happened to the $1-per-mile fines in speeding cases and the jail sentences for reckless driving? Listening occasionally to police court broadcasts, my impression is that in general leniency is becoming the watchword and the rule.

While it was possible to detect that we had a public prosecutor, to one unfamiliar with court procedure, the broadcasts would give the impression that the offices of prosecutor and judge are being executed by the same person, with the prosecutor having the judge's ear most of the time. I have been told that it is a break to have one's case heard while the broadcast is on. When my informant was asked why this should make any difference, he was so unkind as to suggest it might be for political reasons.

WHAT A CONTRAST.

Would Amend Townsend Plan.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I WISH to commend your editorial of Nov. 26 concerning old age pension (the Townsend plan) for stating that it did not seem to preclude coupon-clipping. Dr. Townsend surely overlooked the fact that self-sustaining aged people do not need the pension. And I also think of that army of people between 50 and 60 years of age. Many have lost their savings in bank failures, and on account of old age insurance cannot get employment, while others near that age are let out for the same cause. I recommend that the Townsend plan should be only for those who are not self-sustaining and be extended to include needy persons between 50 and 60.

THE CITY'S FISCAL PROBLEMS.

The tax increases voted by the Board of Aldermen will be used to pay principal and interest on about $4,500,000 of public improvement bonds. They represent part of the $16,100,000 bond issue authorized by the voters last May. It is the city's hope that, by making a start on its public works program, it will safeguard the Federal grants that have been granted on the remainder of the program, though at the present time no plan is pending for financing the rest of the authorized bonds.

It must not be supposed that the action of the Aldermen has any effect on other phases of the city's financial situation. For example, at the end of the fiscal year next spring, the city will have a deficit in general revenue estimated at $1,800,000, for which no provision is being made. It will also have a deficit of about $2,500,000 in the sinking fund. A patchwork solution has been worked out to meet the latter. Some of this obligation is to be refunded, a departure from past St. Louis policy of paying the principal and interest on bonds when due. The remainder is to be met through liquor tax proceeds, estimated at $400,000.

There is also the relief problem. In 1932, a relief bond issue of $4,600,000 was passed and this sum is all but exhausted. Relief demands are mounting, and it seems almost certain that more relief bonds will have to be issued within a few months. The 1932 issue is being retired from Municipal Bridge tolls, and these tolls are large enough to provide for an additional $2,000,000 of relief bonds.

In general, the city's fiscal policy consists partly of postponing the day of reckoning and partly of snatching new revenue here and there, without relation to a coherent plan. Many sound arguments against additional gasoline taxation, for instance, were adduced before the Aldermen, but they went unheeded, because no one knew where else the money could be obtained. The city cannot continue its hand-to-mouth fiscal methods very much longer without running into serious difficulties. Sooner or later, it must face the issue frankly. If, as many believe, real estate in the future will never again pay as great a proportion of taxes as it has in the past, some substitute will have to be found for this source of revenue.

We suggest again the advisability of a survey of the city's financial problem. Such a survey, to be conducted by experts, should include a thorough-going study of tax sources and tax expenditures with a view to formulating a sound and coherent permanent course. The survey, too, should include a study of our municipal government to see where economies can be instituted. The experience of the past year has demonstrated the folly of waiting for an emergency to hit the City Hall in the face before anything is done about it.

THE KINGFISH CRAWFISHES.

Huey Long's skin is thick, but it can be pierced. The college editors of the Western Conference have pierced it. The resolution adopted at their association meeting, condemning Long for his censorship of the students' newspaper, the Reveille, at Louisiana State University, and his "demagogic meddling in matters purely educational," has brought forth an apologetic denial. Long's statement that he had never censored, or attempted to censor, any university publication will be appraised for what it is worth in the light of the reported facts.

Some of the glaring facts, as reported, are: that an edition of the paper containing a letter criticizing Long was held up until the letter was removed; that the editorial management of the paper was instructed, first, to publish nothing objectionable to Senator Long, and second, to submit to faculty censorship, on receipt of which notice the editor resigned. But the saddest of all the facts in the whole lamentable situation is the indignity visited upon the university by Long, in which the university officers and student body acquiesced.

When Huey Long, in an offensive blare of publicity, proposed to finance the transportation of the students to the Vanderbilt game, that was the moment for the head of the institution to take a stand. Had he urged the students to decline Long's gratuity, a heartening response, we believe, would have followed. He said nothing, while Long distributed his largess as loans, and the country witnessed the spectacle of a State University hitched to the wagon of a blatant politician.

AFTER THE KIROFF MURDER.

Soviet Russia has displayed numerous liberal tendencies of late, but remains a dictatorship. Some such conclusion is inevitable to the impartial observer who views the reaction to the assassination of Sergei Kiroff, one of the Soviet regime's foremost leaders.

In any country, the murder of a prominent public figure would be followed by a round-up of suspected enemies of the Government, whether linked with the crime or not. This has now occurred in Russia, with the arrest of 71 White Russians. It is in the manner of their trial that the dictatorial power shows its hand. Under a new decree, passed on the day of Kiroff's murder, their trial and execution, if condemned, will proceed with the greatest rapidity, and no appeal from the court's verdict will be permitted.

Russia, of course, was driven to extremist measures in the past by domestic opposition and by the open animosity of strong factions in other countries, which gave money and military aid to help overthrow the Soviet power. Of late years, however, the U. S. S. R. has put down its enemies at home, and has been generally accepted by the other nations on a basis of equality. Recognition has been widely granted; Russia has been admitted to the League of Nations; she has returned to a prominent role in the arena of European affairs.

Russia's recent educational reforms, her abolition of the notorious OGPU, or secret police, and other examples of a new tolerance were widely interpreted as indicating a growing sense of security. Similarly, the present drastic actions will be viewed as indicating to some extent a sense of insecurity and a need for making propaganda to hold the people's loyalty. More heartening to those who wish well for Russia's future is the reaction of the country's workers to news of the assassination. Their resolutions proclaim a desire to pay tribute to their dead leader by speeding up the work of rebuilding and modernizing the country, rather than ceasing work and crying for revenge.

The assassin's motive, in view of scanty news reports, remains in doubt. Whether he shared in a domestic plot against the Government, was hired by foreign enemies or was satisfying a personal grievance cannot now be known. Being a former Communist party member and only 30 years old, it seems unlikely that he is a vengeful left-over of the old regime. Political assassination is always productive of disturbance, and the Soviet Government faces a test in how it meets the emergency.

ON REPEAL'S FIRST BIRTHDAY.

Though many sound criticisms are being leveled at conditions in the United States since the repeal, effective one year ago today, of the eighteenth amendment, the country is vastly better off for being rid of the intolerable hypocrisy of prohibition.

One of humanity's greatest problems is how to live sensibly with liquor. We were making good progress toward a solution when the dregs seized power in 1920. The consumption of beers and light wines was increasing at the expense of spirits. Then came prohibition, to arouse in the American people that invincible perversity which is an ineradicable trait of the race. Barred from open drinking, we guzzled in speakeasies, hotel rooms and in our homes, and the stuff we guzzled was, to say the least, dynamic. "Two flights up and ask for Tony" was the current phrase, and one freighted with unpleasant connotation on the manners and morals of the day.

Now, again, we are free to deal with the liquor problem in an open and honorable and intelligent way. To judge repeal by the first year is manifestly unfair. The time has been too short. Newly-won freedom is always accompanied by license. We need several years before the evils of prohibition can be wiped out and before a sane temperance movement can gain headway.

The moral basis of prohibition will be lacking in the new teaching of temperance. It will be founded on the bases of good manners, good health and good living. Most Americans who rejected the doctrine that there is something inherently evil in liquor will respond to injunctions that they drink in a civilized manner.

A LEAGUE PARADOX.

What nation, it might be interesting to inquire, makes greatest use of the League of Nations' facilities for registering treaties? One's first guess might be France, for she is an ardent supporter of the League. Or, at any rate, one would expect it to be one of the European member nations, for many have recently produced a crop of new treaties. The answer, as given in the latest figures from Geneva, for the month of October, is surprising, for the country is our own. Of 16 agreements registered, the United States submitted four, made with Haiti, Lithuania, England and Austria.

So the paradox of our relations with the League grows. An American President was the League's founder, but his country remained out of it. And remaining out, it leads the 57 member countries in use of one of the League's useful facilities.

FOR CHAIRMAN, SENATOR BORAH.

Senator Couzens of Michigan has, in current figure, put Senator Borah of Idaho on the spot.

Since the election, Mr. Borah has been insistently demanding reorganization of the Republican party. He is dissatisfied with the party's present leadership. Presumably he is dissatisfied with what the present leaders stand for. That statement has to be qualified, for the reason that nobody knows just what those leaders do stand for. In the late campaign they denounced Roosevelt administration's policies in rhetorical generalities, but, as Mr. Couzens pertinently observes, they proposed nothing vital or concrete. They pointed accusing fingers at "regimentation" and "bureaucracy," which admittedly are fair game for any critic on the rostrum, in the sanctuary, in the parlor, or even the cocktail lounge. Denouncing regimentation or bureaucracy is as safe a sortie as approving the thousand-tons of Sin.

The present leaders of the Republican party, however, are not the only ones who really had nothing to say. Mr. Couzens includes that point in his brief. He refers to Mr. Borah's "devastating campaign" in Idaho, also to Senator Reed's in Pennsylvania, or, rather, to campaigns they tried to make devastating. "Neither one was successful, because they offered no substitutes for the programs they criticized."

So much for background. Mr. Couzens thinks the time has come for action. He proposes action. He proposes that Senator Borah undertake the work that must be done. He nominates the Senator for chairman of the Republican National Committee, who shall enunciate the principles and outline the policies of the reorganized Republican party. The nomination is the logical, practical answer to Mr. Borah's bill of complaint and counsel.

Mr. Couzens might now relinquish the floor and take his seat, but he doesn't. He has other things to say, germane and living things.

Neither the Republican party nor any other party (he declares) can draft a platform that will in any sense meet the situation as it exists today, without knowing whether it is in opposition to, or in support of, Mr. Roosevelt's legislative program for the Seventy-fourth Congress. The idea of forming an opposition party without knowing what it is to oppose is preposterous.

In the public life of the nation which he has so long adorned, Mr. Borah's part has been primarily that of censor. He has played it well, often with stellar distinction. That role does not suffice, in these anxious, pivotal times, either for the statesman or for the high party leader. Constructive is a hackneyed word, worn shabby with thoughtless usage, but it is the word of the hour. Can Mr. Borah rise to the heights which, in his studied judgment and by his own ultimatum, the occasion demands?

HIS NAME IS K.

Another child prodigy has had a baptism of headlines. At the age of 20 months he was rattling off the alphabet without a miss. A little later he showed solid geometry aside as a childish plaything. Geography had meantime been absorbed in a gulp. Now, having arrived at the maturity of four years, a book a day keeps ennui away, and his intelligence quotient is right on the heels of Einstein's. His change of pace isn't quite so baffling as that of Dizzy Dean, but the text of Thucydides, in which Prof. Gilbert Murray confessedly stumbles, is as simple as a fairy tale.

The child's identity has fortunately been concealed. He is traveling through the news simply as K. It will be his early mission, perhaps, to evolve a plan for reorganizing the Republican party which will be satisfactory to both Senator Borah and Chairman Fletcher. In that event, it will be all right to call him O. K.

"YER HONOR, THIS GENT WILL SIGN MY BAIL BOND."

Explaining Japan

Conciliatory speeches and warlike gestures of Japan are explained by writer as not hypocrisy, but Oriental custom; with military firmly in control, action often is taken without advance notice; militarists, holding strategic power in Cabinet, are entrenched by people's distrust of representative government as corrupt.

"Nippon" in the Springfield (Mass.) Republican.

JAPAN today is a paradox in the eyes of the Western world. She boasts of her altruistic desire for peace while pointing to her people who are so sensitive as to feel that, unless naval parity is granted, they are slighted in the eyes of other Asiatics. Through her statesmen, she solemnly affirms her foreign policy, only to have it scoffed at by her militarists. Manchukuo, she tells the world, is an autonomous country, yet its recent reorganization was dictated by the Japanese army, which would brook no opposition.

To the Anglo-Saxon, unversed in the devious ways of Asiatic customs, all this smacks of deceit. It creates a bad impression and it produces distrust.

It is a pity this feeling has become so general. Like many other international misunderstandings, its root causes are to be found in the lack of comprehension so many people have of the strange way in which things get done in Japan. Given this knowledge, a great deal of what appears as hypocrisy is revealed as custom; what at first looks like double-dealing is seen as face-saving.

And, lest it should be said that these are false notions of procedure, let us ask ourselves why, for instance, we prefer shirt-sleeve diplomacy, and why, under Disraeli, England talked of the white man's burden instead of trade profits.

It is true that Japan is cynical in her foreign political outlook. She is concerned primarily with making her borders secure against attack. She also has designs upon Asia. And quite definitely she does not think war is something that can be outlawed. Internecine conflict has played a large part in her history and, in Japanese eyes, the sword was fashioned to hang, ready for constant use, by the side of every patriot.

Nevertheless, in spite of the fact that Japan appears to be at the crossroads of her destiny, with too many backward glances at what seems a gaudy feudal tradition, her real insincerity lies, not in the discrepancies between her published intentions and her actual accomplishments, but in her failure to emphasize that she cannot renounce war nor limit her navy until she has secured undisputed control of the Far East. And this failure is one of which, in similar circumstances, every Western nation would be guilty.

To understand the gaps that so often show between what the Japanese Foreign Office says and what the Japanese military actually do, it is necessary to know something of Japan's difficulties and growing pains. Recent incidents show the military still securely in the saddle, in spite of all that has been said to the contrary. For the time being, and possibly longer, it is to the military that one must look for indications of Japan's foreign policy.

It must not be thought that the military have usurped this position. They have it by right of popular support. And this popular support they may be said to deserve, since it was given to them only after constitutional government failed because of corruption in the political parties.

Here is the first of the real reasons for the rise to supremacy of the militarists—the corruption of so-called representative government.

The second is the faith of the Japanese citizen in the integrity of the army officer. He knows, as Jules Sauerwein, foreign editor of the Paris Soir, says, "that a Japanese Deputy receives 3000 yen a year (nominally $1500). . . . In order to get this slim revenue, one must be elected, and this costs, on an average, from 50,000 to 100,000 yen ($25,000 to $50,000)."

"For what are those large sums used? A sincere Japanese will admit without discussion that they are used to buy votes in most cases. The 446 deputies who meet in Tokyo after each general election are, therefore, not only poor but heavily in debt. Three-fourths of them would not have been able to pay the expenses of their elections without support from financial and industrial groups. Those powers have the greatest interest in controlling the major part of the Diet."

Contrast this with the simple, austere life of the army officer—usually a man of no means living on his salary with no income to augment it, his life and outlook bounded by his conception of duty to his Emperor and the code of the Samurai.

It is no wonder the soldier wins when his record is weighed against the buyer of votes seeking national office. Nevertheless, the power the military have acquired could not have come about unless, in addition to political corruption, there had been a flaw in the Constitution. This flaw is the right the Navy and Army Ministers have of direct access to the Emperor instead of going through the Cabinet.

Here lies the fundamental reason both for their success and the repeated puzzlement felt by foreign observers—the military not only know where they want to go but how they want to get there. There is not this definiteness of purpose, with the power to carry it out, elsewhere in Japan today.

The reason the world so often does not know a move is contemplated until after it is accomplished is because the army and the navy have no confidence in a political democracy. They have felt betrayed so many times that this time they are keeping their own counsel and devising their own procedure.

Unless, therefore, internal events in Japan move much more speedily than they are doing today, it is likely that militaristic domination of national councils will prevail for some time to come. It is true that there is agrarian unrest and that large numbers of students are also dissatisfied. Labor has in several instances struck for higher wages. All of this points to a fruitful condition. But matters will have to get worse, and political representation very much better, before a liberal constitutional government, as understood in the West, ever lifts its head in Japan again.

An Opposition Program

From the Wall Street Journal.

IT is Senator Vandenberg's belief that the proportions of the Democratic majority in House and Senate will put the President in sore need of "sane Republican assistance" to stem the extremist tide. He holds Congress should be animated by what he calls "the coalition spirit"; that the court is praying that Congress put the national welfare above party warfare. As during just successful campaign for re-election pronounces some parts of the New Deal excellent and other parts dangerous.

All of this is right and reasonable. But the Senator has been understood, or misunderstood, to regard an actual party coalition as a feasible program for the coming winter. Coalitions, as Europe knows them, are usually the result of party stalemate in the face of crisis; as the United States knows them slightly, they are born of hardly any emergency short of a foreign war. Coalition properly so-called, does not occur while a single party has an unflinching majority.

It may appear plain, at least to some of us, that the President will need extra-party reinforcements in his struggle against "radicalism" in Congress—assuming, for convenience, that his ideas of what is extreme or subversive of the American conception of government accord with our own. But it seems a bit awkward for the minority to propose coalition to the majority for the purpose of assisting the President to curb the majority. Unless and until the ruling party finds itself deadlocked by internal division, Republican overtures for coalition must appear premature or over-reaching.

Coalition, then, is not, or at least not yet, a program by which Republicans can reorganize themselves into an effective party of opposition. Probably they cannot expect to give definite outline to their strategy before Congress has met and some indications of its temper and of the solidity of the Democratic phalanx are visible.

But this much can be said at once—that Republicans cannot expect to get anywhere by attacking the New Deal with their shut. They cannot, for example, denounce crop-restriction schemes and refuse to look at what tariff protection has done and is doing to the foreign markets for surplus farm production. They cannot talk down public works gratuities while they are individually industrious to grab as many of them for their districts as they can get.

Republican opposition can be made invaluable to the country, whether the congressional situation does or does not reach the coalition stage. But to be useful it must rise to a level of intellectual honesty it has not recently approached.

LIVES OR DOLLARS?

From the Cleveland Plain Dealer.
REAR ADMIRAL GEORGE H. ROCK, former chief of the Navy's Bureau of Construction, ought to know something about making ships safer. He's sure it can be done and demands that it be done. Discussing the Morro Castle disaster, he calls for new Federal legislation to require the fireproofing of all passenger ships, their sufficient and efficient manning and more stringent rules concerning special duties of every man in case of disaster.

One of the jobs of the 75th Congress will be to see that the lessons of the Morro Castle are not forgotten, as was that of the Vestris. It has been hinted that the shipping lobby is preparing to block safety legislation when Congress meets, hopeful that the public has begun to forget about the Morro Castle. Admiral Rock's testimony gives distinguished support to the demand that human lives be put above dollars.

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY GO ROUND

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5. THE President's rest in Warm Springs, concluded with his return to the White House today, has cleared away a lot of the mist surrounding some of his policies.

Even some of his own official family were not quite sure—during the campaign and immediately after elections—whether the chief really was swinging Right, or just talking a lot about it.

Now they have concluded he was just talking about it; that fundamentally he is hitting just as much "left of center" as ever.

The thing that has convinced them is Presidential determination to continue Government spending as the chief policy of economic recovery. This, it is true, goes hand-in-hand with a drive to curtail expenditures on non-essentials. But the most important thing is Roosevelt's recognition that the Government is under obligation to the man with a meager income, or none at all, on three things:

1. Low-cost housing.
2. Unemployment and old-age pensions.
3. And for those unable to work, continued Federal relief.

Regarding old-age and unemployment pensions, the President has yielded to Miss Perkins since his first public statement limiting his social plans only to unemployment insurance. Regarding low-cost housing, he has swung his weight with Secretary Ickes and the theory that the Government is obligated to furnish low-cost dwellings.

Brain Trust advisers consider these decisions most significant. They say that, despite all the goading and wooing of business, Roosevelt still is marching shoulder-to-shoulder on important policies with his left wing advisers.

Justice Cardozo.

On Honeymoon in Bermuda

MR. AND MRS. NATHAN B. SWIFT. ABOARD liner before sailing from New York. She is the former Nancy Taylor, daughter of the late Melvin A. Taylor, Chicago banker. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alden B. Swift, also of Chicago.

SOCIAL ACTIVITIES

MANY out-of-town visitors will be entertained at Christmas parties. Miss Frances Bates, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Maffitt Bates, 5915 Lindell boulevard, will have as her guest Miss Miriam Clark of Boston. She will be here for a dinner dance to be given by the debutante's grandfather, Charles F. Bates, Saturday night, Dec. 29, at the St. Louis Country Club. Miss Bates and Miss Clark became friends at Nantucket, Mass., where both have spent their summers. Miss Clark is a friend of Miss Jean Kelly, also of Boston, who was a bridesmaid at the wedding of Miss Ellen Walsh and Robert Curran Corley, which took place several weeks ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Columbus Baldwin, New York, will arrive in St. Louis Dec. 22 to be the guests over New Year's day of Mrs. Baldwin's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel C. McCluney, 37 Kingsbury place. Miss Baldwin was formerly Miss Katharine McCluney. Thomas G. Ratcliffe, a senior at Harvard, will be here to spend the holidays with his mother, Mrs. Thomas G. Ratcliffe. Mrs. Ratcliffe spent the summer at her home in Woods Hole, Mass., and later visited her daughter, Mrs. N. Baxter Jackson in New York. She returned recently and is with her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene D. Nims, 56 Portland place.

Today Miss Peggy Savage of Glen Head, L. I., will arrive to be the guest of Miss Lois Burkham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lois Burkham, 2 Westmoreland place, and to attend her debut ball Friday night at the St. Louis Country Club.

Members of the younger set have been invited by Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Moore, 36 Portland place, to turn "cowboy and cowgirl" Christmas Eve and "hit the long trail" for the last round-up which they will give for their daughter, Miss Frances W. Moore. The party, at which the guests are promised entertainment in the form of "bulldogging, fancy roping, bucking broncos, mountain music, wrangling and whoopee," will be given at 8:30 o'clock at Deer Creek Club. The invitations, received yesterday, were printed in large, red letter on parchment which bore a picture of a bucking bronco and rider.

Poinsettias and red tapers tied with crimson tulle will decorate the table at a tea to be given this afternoon by Mrs. Edward Powell Cave, in honor of Miss Virginia Lee Burns, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Stanley S. Burns, and Miss Betty Ann Noland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Turner Noland. The party, at which 250 guests are expected to call, will be given at the Cave home, 4554 Pershing avenue, from 4 to 6 o'clock. The mantel in the living room, before which the hostess and guests of honor will receive, will be banked with tea roses. A large bowl of calla lilies will decorate the piano, and there will be roses throughout the other rooms. The candles, cakes and ices served in the dining room will be in red and green with poinsettia decorations.

Mrs. Burns, her mother, Mrs. Lee Harrison, and Mrs. Noland will assist. The debutantes serving will be: Miss Antoinette Schlafly, Miss Mary Metcalfe, Miss Anne Woolsey, Miss Atwood McVoy, Miss Martha Ann Day, Miss Dorothy Dobson, Miss Mildred Vaughan, Miss Frances Bates, Miss Roberta Pierce, Miss Josephine Wagner, Miss Althea Hickey, Miss Marjorie Henger, Miss Anne Francis, Miss Madeline Rogers, Miss Mildred Webster, Miss Helen Franklin, Miss Stella Cartwright and Miss Mary Alice Wall of Greenwich, Conn.

An ostrich plume hat, at which blue tipped white feathers will replace flowers in the decorations, will be given tonight at the St.

NOTED FRENCH PAINTER DIES

Paul-Albert Besnard, 85, Succumb After Long Illness.

PARIS, Dec. 5.—Paul-Albert Besnard, noted painter, died yesterday after a long illness. He was 85 years old.

Born in Paris in 1849, he was educated at the Louis Lejard and Saint-Louis Lycées. In 1874 he was awarded the Prix de Rome and later won many other awards. Some of his better known works were "L'île Juzeuse," "Portrait de Mme. R. Huer," and "Danseuses Espagnoles." He did murals for the School of Pharmacy, the Sorbonne and other Paris buildings.

Busch Horses Win.

CHICAGO, Dec. 5.—The Anheuser-Busch, Inc., entry won first place in the draft horse class at the horse show held in connection with the International Livestock Show last night. The horses were Duncan and Brookdale.

and will precede a dinner dance to be given at the St. Louis Country Club by Mrs. Joseph W. Lewis of Clayton road for Miss Helen Franklin, debutante daughter of Mrs. Elkin L. Franklin and niece of Dr. Malvern B. Clifton, 5391 Waterman avenue.

Miss Dorothy Dobson, debutante daughter of the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Roy Calvin Dobson, 84 Arundel place, will share honors at a mixed tea which Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Baur will give for their daughter, Miss Adele Baur, Saturday, Dec. 22. The party will be given at the Baur home, 15 Ridgemoor drive, from 5 to 7 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Thompson have closed their home in Ferguson and, with their daughter, Margaret Thompson, have taken an apartment at the Park Plaza for the winter.

The Cryptic Club of the Little Theater of St. Louis will entertain the casts of the two current plays after the performance Saturday evening, in the crypt of the theater. Mrs. Archer O'Reilly Jr. will be in charge of entertainment, and Mrs. Allan Gordon heads the Refreshment Committee. Members of the Cryptic Club board are: Mrs. John C. Peist, Mrs. Fred G. Carpenter, Bruce MacFarlane, Paul Klein, Gordon Sommers, H. H. Elbert and Noel O'Reilly.

Edward Davidson, English poet and critic, who will speak on "Poetry in Our Time" at the St. Louis Woman's Club at 8:30 o'clock tomorrow night, will be entertained at dinner preceding his lecture by Mrs. Oscar Johnson, president of the club. Mrs. E. F. Bush and Mrs. Elias Michael will entertain 15 guests at dinner and Mrs. Henry S. Butler and Mrs. William Bagnell will be hostesses at another large dinner party. Mrs. Charles D. Ashcroft, Mrs. William B. Jordan, Miss Sarah L. Tower and Mrs. E. J. White will also entertain at parties preceding the lecture.

Among those who have made reservations for dinner are the following: Chancellor and Mrs. George E. Thorpe, Mrs. E. E. Haverstick, Mrs. William H. Ludwig, Mrs. F. W. A. Vesper, Mrs. Robert L. Lund, Mrs. Carl F. G. Meyer, Mrs. Benjamin S. Pearson and Mrs. George S. Mephann.

Many luncheon parties will be given following two play readings by Prof. Davis Edwards at Hotel Statler Friday and Saturday morning for the benefit of Memorial Home. Friday morning at 10:30 o'clock, Prof. Edwards will read, "Ah, Wilderness," and at the same hour Saturday morning will read, "Mary of Scotland." Mrs. Clay E. Jordan is president of Memorial Home and Miss Ettie A. Jordan is treasurer.

Convict Returned to Maryland.
By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Dec. 5.—Jack Hart, alias Red Kelly, alias James Connelley, escaped Maryland life convict, yesterday was given into custody of Maryland officials and speeded away from the Stateville Prison at Joliet for a journey East. Hart was sentenced in Cook County for assault to kill after an affray in suburban Cicero in which a man was shot during a card game. For months Maryland made attempts to obtain Hart's release in order to return him to the Eastern prison, where he was serving a term for murder. He escaped there in 1929.

To End Stubborn
Cough, Mix This Recipe at Home

Big Saving! No Cooking! So Easy!

Here is the famous old recipe which millions of housewives have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up severe coughs due to colds. It takes but a moment to prepare, and costs very little, but it positively gives effective relief quickly.

From any drugstore, get 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with granulated sugar syrup, made with 2 cups of sugar and one cup of water, stirred a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed—it's so easy! Thus you make a full pint of better remedy than you could buy ready-made and you get four times as much for your money. It never spoils, and children love its taste.

This simple mixture soothes and helps to heal the inflamed throat membranes with surprising ease. It loosens the germ-laden phlegm and eases chest soreness in a most astonishing way.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway Pine, one of the most reliable agents for relieving severe coughs. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

WANT TO LOOK YOUNG?

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must get at the cause—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound as a substitute for calomel to act on the intestines, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets are gentle in their action yet always effective. They help bring about that natural buoyancy which all should

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH

BANKS, WOMEN'S CLUBS, COMMERCE CHAMBERS

tude of support for State commissions and commissioners is also emphasized in the brief filed with the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee, even to the extent of suggesting that any Federal inquiry into the utility industry would violate the comity with states and be a reflection upon commissioners.

The brief referred to was filed when the Walsh resolution for investigation of the Power Trust was before the Senate Committee. The Walsh resolution was later amended in the Senate so that the investigation was made by the Federal Trade Commission and not by the Senate itself as the late Senator Walsh of Montana desired.

Women's Clubs Give Support.
The report tells of the work in many states by the local propaganda committees and the women's clubs and refers to the "mutuality of interest between the General Federation of Women's Clubs and the State committees in getting out the publicity," as shown by correspondence between the chairman of the press department of the General Federation at San Antonio and the director of the Utilities Information Bureau for Texas.

The report says that Mrs. John D. Sherman "made an arrangement with Paul S. Clapp, managing director of the N. E. L. A., under which she received $600 a month for 24 months, through the advertising agency of Lord, Thomas & Logan, for writing articles which appeared in numerous agricultural papers over her signature as president of
Clubs."

Attention was also paid, the report says, to enlisting the goodwill of the youth for the utility program through the Y. M. C. A., the Y. W.
C. A., the Boy Scouts, young men's business and other associations. In Missouri, the utility men were told to take an active part in the affairs of the Boy Scouts, "keeping in mind that it will be only a few years until these boys will become the business men and voters in their community."

The report says "even the churches were not immune from the attention of the utilities." It quotes A. W. Robertson of the Philadelphia Co. at Pittsburgh, as expressing the thought that "ministers, who are generally unfairly critical of corporations, including public service companies, should, like educators, be better paid. It would certainly help to cure some of their mental bias." He thought "leaders in our business life could well consider the advisability of giving some real attention to the economic welfare of educators and others" largely responsible for training the minds of children.

Earle W. Hodges, director of the Arkansas committee, according to the report, told an N. E. L. A. convention that "in Arkansas we realize the importance of reaching the ministers and teachers, as well as the newspapers. . . . If we have the indorsements of the newspapers, the ministers and the teachers, we are pretty sure to succeed in any undertaking. . . . The most effective workers in any community are its ministers of the gospel and its school teachers and newspapers."

Attacks State Regulation.
Although the report does not specifically say so, perhaps for diplomatic reasons, it indicates that the commission thinks that State regulation has failed. The report makes an oblique attack on State regulation by declaring that "although numerous utility spokesmen have repeatedly professed that there should be adequate State regulation, yet public utility activities in the political field have almost without exception been of opposition and negation to proposed legislative action directed at the regulation of utilities which were restrictive in nature."

"It would appear," the commission observes, "that at least many utility spokesmen use 'State regulation' as a foil or argument against local municipal regulation, Federal regulation or regulation by contract. Although State regulation provisions vary considerably, all are generally referred to as adequate. From this it is apparent that the desideratum is the least regulation. Federal regulation is commonly referred to as 'interference.' In this claim of sufficient State regulation there has, until recently, been no serious effort to regulate holding companies and their security issues. Various spokesmen for the utilities have asserted that regulation of holding companies is no concern of the State utility commissions because holding companies are not engaged in utility business and what occurs within them has no effect upon the public in the shape of rates or upon the public's dealing with the operating companies. This claim is misleading."

Red Label for Opponents.
As an example of how the utilities mixed in politics, the report cites the classic question and answer that passed between R. R.
McGregor and E. J. Mullany.
Mullany asked: "If you were running for a nomination for United States Senator against a man whose speeches indicate that he favors Government ownership generally and you had to get up a speech or series of speeches tackling him on that line—what have you that you find pertinent and useful?"

McGregor replied: "My idea would be not to try logic or reason, but to try to pin the Bolshevik idea on my opponent."

Mullany was in charge of utility publicity in Illinois, and the report says that Mullany's speech "Pinning the Red Label" was printed and 19,000 copies circulated by the Illinois committee.

Referring to activities in Pennsylvania, the report says the custom was for the utility association secretary to draw checks in round numbers to his own order, the money being paid without record

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 5, 1934

because—to use the words of a witness before the commission—"if no one knows who got the money or how much, then no one would ever know what they got it for."

The report tells of an address by J. B. Rutherford of Toronto, in which he commented in very unfavorable terms upon the operation of public utilities. J. B. Sheridan, director of the Missouri Utilities Committee, wrote M. H. Aylesworth, president of the National Broadcasting Co. and former managing director of the N. E. L. A., about this address. Aylesworth replied, according to the report, that Rutherford "had been permitted to make the speech in order to avoid the accusation that the National Broadcasting Co. was a monopoly."

He added that this was "just one of those things which was not very apt to occur again in the very near future."

Customer Ownership.
Of "customer ownership" of stock
the report says this was another plan designed to consolidate good public relations and had been generally adopted by the utilities. "Customer ownership," says the report, "has been emphasized as public ownership. The facts do not warrant such statement. Ownership presupposes control, while the securities sold in these customer-ownership campaigns were chiefly non-voting. It is in reality customer investment, with control remaining with the sellers."

According to testimony at the investigation, of the total amount of stock reported sold in customer ownership drives, in 1924 only 11.5 per cent was common stock, which ordinarily carries voting privileges; in 1925 only 5.86 per cent, and in 1926 only 1.88 per cent. The report adds that "though customer ownership has undoubtedly been of value as a financial factor, its greatest value was admittedly as a public relations and political device."

tion. The Democratic House caucus will have 102 members and 52 votes, while the control of the caucus will go to the 50 votes.

Bennett Claims 50 Votes.

Bennett said he had assurances of support from 50 Democratic House members. He said he had not asked for written pledges, in the belief it was not fair to try to tie up his friends with written pledges, this far ahead of the organization. The organization caucus will be held on the eve of the convening of the Legislature, on Jan. 2.

Bennett was an active supporter in the 1933-1934 special session of Gov. Park's administration bills to permit cities of less than 75,000 population to issue revenue bonds for the construction of municipally-owned public utility plants, instead of issuing taxation bonds. The public utility lobby opposed the program.

The program, consolidated in one bill, passed the House but was smothered in the Senate Municipal Corporations Committee, together with four bills covering the same program, which were introduced in the Senate.

Favored Lobby Inquiry.

Bennett also supported a move in the House of the 1933-1934 session for a lobbying investigation, which was aimed primarily at activities of a powerful public utility lobby during the 1933 regular session. The inquiry, once authorized by the House, later was blocked and the investigating committee discharged for failing to vote in the House, before the committee had a chance to hold a hearing.

"I have no grievance against the utilities or breweries," Bennett said. "If I am elected Speaker I shall accord to them and their representatives the same courteous treatment that would accord to the rest of the State."

Representative H. P. Lauf of Jefferson City, Cole County, the third avowed candidate for the Speakership, has been campaigning actively, but has made no announcement as to the strength he has developed.

MUNITIONS MEN IN U. S. HELPING GERMANY REARM

Called in 1925 to restrict traffic in war materials.

The evidence was that American manufacturers gathered at the call of Herbert Hoover, then Secretary of Commerce, to express their views on the proposed treaty. Letters from the files of the companies indicated efforts growing out of this conference succeeded in modifying the pact.

Chairman Nye read one of these, and commented that Hoover should have called in a "put out" man among the arms makers with an "assist."

Ireneau du Pont, leading munition manufacturer, said the du Pont company made "no attempt whatsoever to influence the delegates to any international conference." He said the arms men at the Hoover meeting "did not present a confusion of war munitions with commercial products."

The committee produced correspondence between members of the munitions makers committee after the Hoover conference to show they sought treaty reservations under which "we will be safe from any reference for this generation at least."

Tilson and Arms Makers.

The investigators placed emphasis on evidence that former Representative John Tilson, then majority leader of the House, was in communication with the arms makers of his state about the conference. Later he served as adviser to the American delegation.

"We have here the picture of a leader of the House," Nye said, "in effect straddling the backs of delegations, actually representing four companies while technically representing the Government as confidential adviser."

Nye said efforts of the State De-

While intent to get something worth out of the conference had been hampered by the war and commerce departments, which were in consultation with the arms makers.

Du Pont, on the witness stand, testified that "perhaps it was the light that prevailed in this despite the high moives of the State Department."

Du Pont and the other munitions witnesses contended throughout their efforts to modify the Geneva treaty were to protect the manufacturers from undue restrictions on "hunting weapons" and guns not usually associated with war uses.

"Nothing Too Good for John."
An officer of the Winchester Arms
Co., broached the idea that Tilson become Secretary of War in case Secretary Weeks should not recover from an illness then afflicting him.

"This is just to let you know in personal way that my own feeling is there is nothing too good or John," H. F. Bebe, of the Winchester Arms Co., wrote in a letter introduced as evidence.

In the Post-Dispatch of November 2, we advertised: "Arvin Superior Hot-Water Heaters . . . $5.45." We regret that the wording of this advertisement was misleading. The Arvin is a trade-named Heater made by the Noblitt-Sparks Industries. Although the Superior Heater is made by the same manufacturer it should not be confused with the Arvin. With some of the delegates was described in a memorandum drawn up by Maj. Alken Simmons, a Dupont officer: It said:

"On the morning of April 14, the executive committee of the manufacturers met and drew up their final report which was presented at a meeting held that afternoon presided over by Hoover and attended by Admiral Long, Gen. Ruggles (delegates), Maj. Strong, Dulles (also a delegate) and Mariner (a high official of the State Department), Dumeratzky and Hoagland, both of the Department of Commerce, and the Executive Committee of Beebe, Simons, Nichols, Riersen and Harrington (all connected with the industry)."

"Properly Looked After."

The memorandum quoted Hoover as telling the manufacturers that "due to the representations made by the War Department, the Navy Department and the Manufacturers' Committee, the United States' delegates would make reservations on the proposed draft which would render it harmless to American interests."

Again it said: "With the reservation made by the United States Government and the presence of Admiral Long, Commander Leary and Gen. Ruggles, all of whom are familiar with our point of view it is believed that the interests of the du Pont company and our customers will be properly looked after." The controversy centered upon a draft treaty for the control of arms shipments through a licensing system, which the manufacturers who testified insisted would have unduly restricted the sale of sporting guns and ammunition.

The controversy centered upon the lay in the introduction of reservations making the treaty apply only to military rifles, while committee members pointed out that no manufacturers so classifies his product. The treaty drawn in 1925 was not ratified by the United States until last spring. Sufficient ratifications have not yet been obtained to enable its promulgation.—

EARLY PERIOD

Utilities Are Somewhat Laggards—A Number of Specialties Are Unusually Firm in Trading.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—The stock market continued its slow upward movement on a broad front today, boosting a handful of issues to new highs for the year.
Stocks in the morning period up to early afternoon were joined by bonds, where railroad issues continued their recovery, and principal staples were firm, under the leadership of grains. Wheat advanced more than a cent, while the dollar advanced in terms of the pound sterling. Continental Gold currencies were quiet.
Rail shares extended yesterday's recovery, but miscellaneous industries soon took the lead. Utilities suggested a three-hour morning, but soon were pulled up again by the general upward trend.
Shares getting up around 1 to 2 points included U. S. Steel, American Telephone, Chrysler, Western Union, Union Pacific, Delaware & Hudson, National Distillers, U. S. Industrial Alcohol, American Machine and Foundry, Liggett & Myers, B. Case, Lambert, Westinghouse Electric, U. S. Rubber, preferred, American Smelting, U. S. Smelting, Cerro de Pasco and others. International Business Machines and Penney rose about a point, and United Aircraft, Radio preferred issues and Reynolds Tobacco B. fractions to new highs for the year.
The improvement in railroad securities had a stimulating effect upon the general market, although definite new developments of a character to account for the trend in these securities were lacking. Chart theorists, however, had been worried over the failure of the rail stocks to "confirm" the recent advance in industrial shares, and finally did turn upward, many chart readers accepted it as a bullish sign for the market as a whole.
Others, however, thought the movement in the rail stock had yet gone far enough to be convincing.
In the meantime, lacking anything definite in the way of news regarding the carriers, Wall Street was busy with rumors of new plans in Washington to put the transportation system on a feet. These rumors seemed to be based largely on conjecture, although it was pointed out that a prosperous railroad system would mean heavier consumption of important materials such as iron and steel, and could play an important part in the recovery of the economy.
The anniversary of repeal was celebrated by considerable buying of alcohol shares. Non-ferrous metals also pushed up substantially, evidently reflecting fresh inflation hopes in some export quarters. These hopes, however, were based chiefly on the plans for a huge Government spending program, rather than expectation of further devaluation of the dollar.
The demand for Treasury obligations offered at the start of the week had a tonic effect upon sentiment in money markets.
Improvement in the bond market was expected to stimulate plans for conversion of funded debt to a lower interest basis by corporations with good credit ratings.
The "Iron Age" reported the steel operating rate had registered a level of consecutive gain, lifting the level of production of the industry as a whole to 29 1/2 per cent of capacity from 29 a week ago.
Another advance of 50 cents a ton in heavy melting steel scrap at Pittsburgh was accepted as indication of improvement in steel demand and as foreshadowing additional expansion in production.
Although electric power consumption dropped sharply last week because of the Thanksgiving holiday, total output was 8.4 per cent ahead of the 1933 week, according to the Edison Electric Institute. That compared with a gain of 6.1 per cent the preceding week and was the best year-to-year comparison since last spring.
The British pound opened at $4.94, off 1/4 of a cent. French francs were .004 of a cent lower at 6.88 cents.

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—The stock market continued its slow upward movement on a broad front today, boosting a handful of issues to new highs for the year.

Stocks in the morning period up to early afternoon were joined by bonds, where railroad issues continued their recovery, and principal staples were firm, under the leadership of grains.

Wheat advanced more than a cent, while the dollar advanced in terms of the pound sterling. Continental Gold currencies were quiet.

Rail shares extended yesterday's recovery, but miscellaneous industries soon took the lead. Utilities suggested a three-hour morning, but soon were pulled up again by the general upward trend.

Shares getting up around 1 to 2 points included U. S. Steel, American Telephone, Chrysler, Western Union, Union Pacific, Delaware & Hudson, National Distillers, U. S. Industrial Alcohol, American Machine and Foundry, Liggett & Myers, B. Case, Lambert, Westinghouse Electric, U. S. Rubber, preferred, American Smelting, U. S. Smelting, Cerro de Pasco and others.

International Business Machines and Penney rose about a point, and United Aircraft, Radio preferred issues and Reynolds Tobacco B. fractions to new highs for the year.

The improvement in railroad securities had a stimulating effect upon the general market, although definite new developments of a character to account for the trend in these securities were lacking.

Chart theorists, however, had been worried over the failure of the rail stocks to "confirm" the recent advance in industrial shares, and finally did turn upward, many chart readers accepted it as a bullish sign for the market as a whole.

Others, however, thought the movement in the rail stock had yet gone far enough to be convincing.

In the meantime, lacking anything definite in the way of news regarding the carriers, Wall Street was busy with rumors of new plans in Washington to put the transportation system on a feet.

These rumors seemed to be based largely on conjecture, although it was pointed out that a prosperous railroad system would mean heavier consumption of important materials such as iron and steel, and could play an important part in the recovery of the economy.

The anniversary of repeal was celebrated by considerable buying of alcohol shares. Non-ferrous metals also pushed up substantially, evidently reflecting fresh inflation hopes in some export quarters.

These hopes, however, were based chiefly on the plans for a huge Government spending program, rather than expectation of further devaluation of the dollar.

The demand for Treasury obligations offered at the start of the week had a tonic effect upon sentiment in money markets.

Improvement in the bond market was expected to stimulate plans for conversion of funded debt to a lower interest basis by corporations with good credit ratings.

The "Iron Age" reported the steel operating rate had registered a level of consecutive gain, lifting the level of production of the industry as a whole to 29 1/2 per cent of capacity from 29 a week ago.

Another advance of 50 cents a ton in heavy melting steel scrap at Pittsburgh was accepted as indication of improvement in steel demand and as foreshadowing additional expansion in production.

Although electric power consumption dropped sharply last week because of the Thanksgiving holiday, total output was 8.4 per cent ahead of the 1933 week, according to the Edison Electric Institute.

That compared with a gain of 6.1 per cent the preceding week and was the best year-to-year comparison since last spring.

SHORTAGE OF SKILLED LABOR IN SOME LINES

Mechanical Engineers Predict Changes in Economic Development of United States.

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—An optimistic but critical view of the future was taken today by the Society of Mechanical Engineers in its report of progress in management, presented at the annual meeting of the society.

A scarcity of labor has developed already in the skilled trades of tool and machine building and maintenance, the report says, and a modest business pickup would leave many capital goods industries unable to find competent men. The skilled labor shortage is due, the report said, largely to the fact that virtually no apprentices have been trained in the last five years.

"The United States," it added, "is now emerging from a period of relatively unbounded resources to one having clearly defined limits, requiring intensive and co-ordinated effort if progress is to be made. Changes must, and will, come in both the technical and social fields."

Of the six major professions, the report found, the Protestant clergy can be assured the highest income. Next in order are doctors, lawyers, engineers, college professors and authors and writers.

A Flying Vanderbilt.
Two Were Tired of Life.
In and Out of Who's Who.
Had He Beaten a Dog.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

THE original Commodore Vanderbilt, who ran a little boat from Staten Island to the mainland, then became the country's biggest railroad man and head of the New York Central, would be interested to know that his great grandson, William K. Vanderbilt, has built a big airplane, for his personal travel. His branch of the family will be independent of railroads, even of yachts, except for ocean crossings.

W. K. Vanderbilt, as a youth, did a great deal to encourage the development of the American automobile industry. He built the automobile parkway on Long Island, organized the first great automobile races that encouraged automobile building and better automobiles. Now he takes to airship building, a good way to spend part of the money accumulated by the original Commodore.

Hector Fuller of New York, next to Grover Whalen the ablest of "greeters" of New York City, was chosen by Mayor Walker to stand at the city hall entrance to tell distinguished arriving guests how happy New York was to see them.

Time passes, birthdays accumulate. Mr. Fuller discovered that he was 70 years old, with things not as they had been, and he killed himself. You hope that somebody "greeted" him on another shore.

Another, sadder, case of these "suicide days" was the death of a 21-year-old girl, who poisoned herself. Her name is omitted. She wrote to her family: "Not being able to have what I want, I have done this" and asked that "his letters and my poetry" be buried with her, and that he, "Joe," also be buried with her. He had told her that he would kill himself.

"Police say that 'Joe' is alive and well, so far as they know, with no intention of committing suicide. For two years he had been secretly married to the unhappy girl. She thought he was surely going to kill himself and wrote: 'I must go with him.' She will be disappointed."

"Men have died, and worms have eaten them, but not for love."

The British "Who's Who" gives Hitler two lines. Frances Perkins is not in the book, although Greta Garbo is in, and Upton Sinclair, with a full account of his EPIC. Those left out must console themselves with the fact that Leonardo da Vinci, in all his writing, did not mention Christopher Columbus, and the Duke of St. Simon in his long memoirs makes only one little mention of Voltaire, merely because "he was the son of my father's notary."

He was also the father of the French Revolution, which put an end to the importance of French Dukes. But St. Simon could not know that.

At Tivoli, N. Y., the courtroom cheered when a jury acquitted a teacher, 27 years old, for beating a 13-year-old boy with a rubber hose and allegedly hitting him with his fist. The man admitted using the rubber hose, but denied using his fist.

Had he admitted beating a young dog with a rubber hose, the courtroom would not have cheered.

Senator Huey Long of Louisiana says he has enrolled 1,460,000 Americans in his "share-the-wealth" plan. That seems a small figure for a plan to divide big fortunes. New York and Chicago had thriving "share-the-wealth" organizations before Senator Long started his. Some original gentlemen with share-the-wealth inclinations are in Atlanta penitentiary, some in Colorado prison, some on Alcatraz Island, in the bay back of San Francisco.

Senator Borah says: "Reorganize the Republican party, make it liberal, bring in the young men." Mr. Fletcher, chairman of the Republican National Committee, an "oldish" gentleman, says he will do nothing of the kind. The party is all right.

It is like two partners owning a hansom cab quarreling about repainting or not repainting it. That would make no difference. The Democratic taxi is the thing just now, running at high speed, with billions of real money exploding inside the engine. Republican hansom cabs are out of date. Even if the Democratic taxi stopped for lack of financial gas, the Republican hansom cab would hardly come back.

Wiley Post, one of the good flyers, in a struggle of two hours and 12 minutes, climbed up into the air, he thinks, about 48,000 feet.

If No Purpose or Plan Exists for Man, He Can Make Them.

By Elsie Robinson

DON'T know why, but this seems to be the case with the twenty-seven letters from them so far. All of them boasting about how they don't believe in God or—

All right, Boys and Girls—go on and boast, if that pleases you. But as for me, I'm going on believing in God and immortality and all the rest of these ideas you label "junk."

"But you can't PROVE there's a God," you cry. No, I can't. Neither can you prove there isn't.

Nor can I prove that life goes on after death. But again, neither can you prove that it DOESN'T.

In fact, when it comes right down to brass tacks, none of us can prove anything. Free will—have we got it or haven't we? Do we or don't we decide our own destinies? Right and wrong—what are they? And do they matter? Is life anything but a free-for-all? Have we souls—and a secret sense of decency? Or are we all only ruthless animals?

I can't answer those questions. Neither can you. There is to be sure—considerable testimony on the subject. But there is fully as much AGAINST as there is FOR. And you can make any text seem hellish or holy, according to your taste.

That's pretty much what it simmers down to, isn't it—a question of personal taste. One believes what one chooses to believe—and digs up one's arguments accordingly. That being so—I CHOOSE TO BELIEVE ON THE BIG SIDE.

Maybe you're right—Friend Atheist—when you say that there's only one life. But if that's so, why the devil should you wish to fill it with ugliness and hate, rebellion and despair?

You point to sores. I'll match you with flowers. There are just as many flowers in the world as sores—and they're just as real. Why pass 'em up then and go looking for abscesses? If we are here so briefly, as you say, all the more reason to make the visit pleasant.

No God? Maybe not. No purpose or plan? But how do you explain the loyalty of a dog—the markings on a butterfly's wing—the sacrifice of a poor father or mother, laying down their lives for their children?

Accident? Egotism? All right—have it your own way. But I prefer to think it's a sign that there's something larger and lovelier behind our human muddle than our own small greed and fear.

No future life? Only these few years? THEN BIGGOLLY I'M GOING TO LIVE THEM AS IF I OWN 'EM THE STARS! For here are facts on which there can be no argument, lads—

Courage is more splendid than cowardice. Kindness is happier than cruelty. Truth is prouder than dishonesty. Beauty is more inspiring than ugliness. A song is sweeter than a sneer. So—songs for me! Gloom and gripe—if that's your idea of fun. But me—I CHOOSE TO BELIEVE!

If there is no soul—TLL ACT ONE! No future life? TLL BET ON ONE. No purpose or plan? TLL MAKE ONE. No God above? TLL BE ONE!

A Jewish group in Palestine has purchased at a reported price of a million dollars, 40,000 acres of land near Lake Hula, said to be highly fertile, capable of supporting thousands of Jewish colonists. On that land, naturally fertile, Jewish colonists will endeavor to restore the marvelous fertility of ancient Palestine, enthusiastically described by Taine.

Elegant Gifts for Christmas

By Sylvia Stiles.

THIS is written for the lucky few. It is intended for those who have money burning holes in their pocketbooks and who are convinced that the circulation of their dollars signifies a healthy economic condition. To them Santa Claus is an extravagant fellow and when they step into his role they wave magic wands and produce, exquisite, expensive gifts.

Most of these givers whose purchases run into big money belong to the masculine gender, and their generosity is showered on the opposite sex. Wives and sweethearts especially profit by their largesse.

For this reason, the majority of gift suggestions described in the following paragraphs are the sort that would go "from him to her." But, in the event that a wife with money wants to impress her husband, or an heiress wants to entice that nice young man next door, some suggestions for gifts "from her to him" are included. The ratio, you'll discover, is about 10 to one which may be giving the women a little extra credit after all.

Jewelry heads the list of elegant gifts both for women and for men. Several of St. Louis' leading jewelers offer their best suggestions to any gift-mad soul who comes rushing in, demanding their most magnificent wares. Their recommendations range all the way from a diamond brooch, very dainty and feminine, to a diamond studded cigarette case that's as masculine as such an ornamental gadget as this can be. The brooch, which is one of the most unusual in a year when original design is being stressed, introduces a butterfly motif. It is among the gifts sketched.

One hundred and sixteen baguettes and round diamonds supply its brilliance. In size it measures approximately two inches across and over an inch from top to bottom.

Among distinctive rings there is a buckle design which is unique and decidedly handsome. This combines baguette cut diamonds on one side of the novel setting and round diamonds on the other. There are 25 stones in all. The mounting, of course, is platinum. Tailored rings are sufficiently different to cause a married woman to throw away her old engagement ring and ask her husband to see that Santa Claus gets her a new one. There have the setting toward one side so that another ring worn with it fits up closely and the two seem to belong together. Baguettes and round stones both are used.

STAR sapphires and antiquely set stones are rivals for popularity among other jewels. Baguette diamonds adorn the side of a stunning sapphire ring and there are tiny round diamonds to add greater brilliance. A white cameo circled with pearls and set on onyx assures a jewel display that is most effective whether worn on the hand or mounted as a brooch.

Diamonds and platinum form the most beautiful alliance for watches but there are several diversions in style that have large price marks. The round watch with a more legible dial has returned to popularity among women's watches and is developed in beautifully diamond-set models as well as plain platinum or yellow gold. Forty diamonds bedeck one watch which follows the new trend in shape.

The clip watch sketched is a novelty which costs a sufficient amount to place it in the ultra class. It combines sterling silver, marcasite and black enamel but a similar model more dressy in appearance substitutes rhinestones for the marcasites. A man's watch which is out of the ordinary is a perfect square and slips into an oblong case. The case may be selected of leather, plain or diamond-set enamel, or unbreakable lacquer finish. One model has an automatic winding device.

The cigarette case illustrated is quite the most extravagant that could be found anywhere in St. Louis. It is of 14 karat gold and is banded diagonally across two corners with jewels. One band is of full cut diamonds and the other of sapphires. The central shield was designed for a monogram.

Evening vanity cases for women have become so beautifully styled that they now rank as jewelry. A man who wants to please his sweetheart could find nothing better this season than one of these vanities which range in price from $5 to $75. One style comes in a special gift box of black and gold which has a gold tassel pull on the drawer-like container. A book vanity may be selected of gold, silver or black lacquer or of jeweled velvet. A compartment for 18 cigarettes is provided in addition to doreen puff, mirror and comb, and space for all other evening gadgets. Gold engine turned frames with elaborate rhinestone clasps enhance several of these bags.

Furs rank with jewels in women's on, is "husband to wife" gift that estimation of the perfect Christmas gift. The practical person with plenty of money to spend no doubt will select a mink coat as providing the most for the price. But for the more frivolous gift, an evening cape is guaranteed to bring exclamations of delight. Ermine, sable and fox are the most aristocratic furs for this purpose. The white fox cape sketched gives an indication of the new designing. Animal feet and heads are clustered together near the waistline at the back while a rhinestone band holds the skins at the shoulders. A similar band serves as a front fastening.

Exquisite gifts are inclined to be very personal, no doubt because even the most generous is not interested in showering his money upon strangers. Perhaps the least personal of all, unless it be the vanity bag mentioned above, is the gift of perfume. By selecting a beautiful bottle and the rarest of scents, and enamored young man may please the girl of the moment without making his gift seem as though it should be followed by an engagement ring.

To give perplexed ones an idea as to what may be obtained at the perfume counter there is that jewel-like bottle illustrated. It is of sapphire blue glass, polished so that it suggests a mirror. The almost crown-like perfection and the flower cutting on the front imitates a lapis stone. How much this costs depends upon the contents, the total ranging from $15 to $35.

Children Have Their Day in Store Displays

The Latest Juvenile Attraction Is a Seven-Day Play Set for Girls.

By Sylvia

SINCE Christmas is largely the children's day, St. Louis stores are doing their best to present a complete collection of toys and near-toys that have a juvenile appeal. The small girl or boy who has difficulty in getting up in the morning may be spurred to activity by a novel one is shaped like a duck and quite gaily decorated. The duck is yellow, eyes are beady black and beak is a brilliant red.

A seven-day play set should help a mother keep a young daughter occupied throughout the entire week. The newest version of this daily ensemble includes a variety of tasks. One day is devoted to knitting, one to painting, a third to bead stringing while the others are represented by less profitable pastimes such as bubble blowing.

Nothing has been overlooked this year in making the paint sets so complete that they may make a painter out of father or mother rather than of a more youthful genius. One set that is tucked into a handsome wooden case becomes an easel when the top is placed in an upright position. The bottom of the box is equipped with a pad while the top has drawers filled with easily reached brushes and paints.

Your small daughter might be encouraged to help you with the housework if you see that Santa Claus sends her a dusting set. Miniature carpet sweeper, dust mop, dust pan and a small box of cleanser are included in this housekeeper's kit. An ironing board is also included, constructed that it is not easily tipped over is another new item of homemaker appeal.

Pulling a hobby horse across the floor is all right as an occasional pastime, but most children would prefer the steed that can be ridden. Up-to-date horses in the toy department have both of these important features. A most impressive nag is made of painted wood with the exception of the tail which is genuine hair.

Perhaps Junior can be persuaded to leave father's automobile alone if he has a toy garage of his own. If he is less than six years old, there's a mechanical toy that will furnish him with plenty of amusement. It consists of a small garage with two cars inside. When the toy is wound up, the garage doors open and the automobiles come whizzing out.

Skipper now is a fire chief. Among the toys that are named for this popular comic page character is a petal car which is equipped with all of the speed and siren devices that a chief should need. Several scooters with the new streamline fronts also bear the Skipper name.

When you take the children to the toy department, don't fail to meet Smokey Joe. He is a fire fighter supreme, but he won't do his work unless you wind a certain spring. Climbing up a ladder is his particular feat, the number of rungs which he overcomes being dependent upon your skill at winding.

Felt patches which may be made into many different objects will appease a small daughter who is too young to undertake the making of a quilt. A young son might also become interested in the tiny bits of felt since a circus is one of the new sets on the market. Bright scraps of the fabric may be put together to form a complete menagerie as well as important ring performers.

Space does not permit additional descriptions of gifts that will make you loved or popular, but if you are one of the chosen few with money burning holes in your pocketbook dump your heart and your dollars on a retailer's counter.

HOROSCOPE

For Thursday, December 6. THE atmosphere is full of nebulous schemes, but that doesn't mean you have to grasp them. Best to let 'em sail by. Getting better and more sociable in afternoon and evening. Be regular and sympathetic.

Testing Values. The fact that a man has a right to his opinion doesn't make that opinion right. Other people have opinions, too. That is why we have elections. Two people with opposing opinions can disagree with each other but two people whose opinions are both right cannot disagree. From now till the end of next July is a period of testing the values of opinions in the lives and affairs of those born March 21-30, inclusive, especially during the balance of this month, and from March 27 through April and May to June 12. This applies particularly to members of this group who are married or who are considering this important step. Avoid excitement, overshooting the mark and quarrels.

This applies in legal and business relations with partners, also.

Your Year Ahead. Ebb and flow are the laws of nature. Right now is something of an ebb for most folks born on this anniversary, but the inflow of results will come for at least two years beginning next November, if you are ready for it. Use the interval in study and preparation; and hold on to estate, May to September. Danger: Till Jan. 5; Sept. 22-Nov. 13.

Date Nut Rocks. (Spicy.) One cup fat. Two cups dark brown sugar. Three eggs. Four tablespoons cream. Two teaspoons cinnamon. One teaspoon cloves. One teaspoon nutmeg. One-quarter teaspoon salt. One cup chopped dates. One cup broken nuts. Four cups flour. One teaspoon soda. One teaspoon vanilla. Cream fat and sugar. Add eggs and cream. Beat well. Add rest of ingredients. Mix lightly. Drop portions of stiff dough from tip of spoon onto greased baking sheets. Flatten cookies with broad side of knife. Bake 12 minutes in moderate oven.

Dear Mrs. Post: My employer and his wife invite me out to dine and to the movies often, and I never do any more than say in effect, "Thank you for a lovely time." I know that they would not want me to feel obligated in any way, but enough is enough, and I must do something at least. But what is it?

Answer: You would probably make them very uncomfortable if you did anything that meant your spending money. But you might send Mrs. Employer a few flowers—and the word "few" is meant literally. Nothing could be more welcome—or lovely—than a dozen of the shortest stemmed roses or a few sweet peas, or whatever else the florist has that you can afford. (Copyright, 1934.)

Social Rules That Affect Invitations

Friends of Guest May Be Invited to House, Through Strangers to Hostess.

By Emily Post

Dear Mrs. Post: MY sister-in-law is coming to visit me. I am practically a stranger in town, but she happens to have quite a few friends here, and I wonder if I may ask them in to some thing for her, even though I don't know them.

Answer: Certainly you can ask your friends to your house even though you do not know them. Write on your visiting cards "To meet Mrs. John Smith" and the time and day.

Dear Mrs. Post: My mother has recently come to live with me and I would like her to know some other people who are simply acquaintances of mine to whose houses I have never been invited. May I ask some of these people in for her sake, and would I include some of my own friends, too? How should I invite the strangers?

Answer: Correctly, of course, it is the place of the elder resident to invite the newcomer—or of the elder person to invite the younger. On the other hand, if you know some of them well enough to be sure of their friendliness, it would not be out of the way to write these friendly ones that your mother is coming to live with you and ask them to whatever you wish.

Dear Mrs. Post: A brother and sister, apartment house friends of mine, invited me (on the way out of the building one evening) to go with them to see a movie. I went, and after the show I offered to pay for my ticket. Both of them asked as though I had committed a serious crime in offering this money, and I feel since that they are purposely avoiding me. Why?

Answer: I have no way of knowing "how" you made your offer. Questions of payment involve a certain amount of tact. Otherwise your willingness to do your share should not have offended them. It may be that you are merely improving their avoidance of you. In fact, this seems more likely.

Dear Mrs. Post: My employer and his wife invite me out to dine and to the movies often, and I never do any more than say in effect, "Thank you for a lovely time." ## EXPLANATION OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON

CLOCK THAT RUNS BACKWARDS—A few years ago Ruth Zander of Brooklyn, attended a Traubenfest at which she took a chance on a clock raffle and won the clock pictured in the cartoon. It ran fine for a while; then it started running backwards. It keeps good time, but Miss Zander must get accustomed to reading 8 o'clock as 4 o'clock, 3 and so on.

DOG THAT READS ONLY GERMAN—Dr. A. J. Glaser of Comfort, Tex., claims to have a setter dog that can only read the German language. The proof of this contention is borne out by the fact that the doctor takes the Texas Free Press, German newspaper of the State of Texas, and his wonder dog always selects that particular paper from the assortment of newspapers on the floor, delivering it to his master on command.

Going Bonde

By Jane O'Donnell

SALLY HOWARD beamed nervously at the cab driver's back, tilted her nose so that it would suggest just the correct amount of disdainful dignity, and picked up her personality at the point where she had left it the evening before.

All the assurance of 17, Sally realized, was going to be needed when she next entered the old homestead, but, after all, it was her own life she was leading.

Sally was quite sure that Count Sergee, the perfectly devastating man who had lectured so beautifully on the fuller life, and living magnificently, and being individual, had been talking directly to her. Hadn't he spoken of getting out of rules and shaping one's life after one's idea?

Of course, he hadn't really mentioned movie stars, but after all when one's figure, one's features, and one's voice were the exact replica of Constance Moore's it was rather stupid to have everything spoiled by mousy brown hair that didn't sparkle.

She would never forget that day with Count Sergee. It had been at her home and the Count had been comparing Agatha and Jean, and all the rest of her friends that really didn't matter, to subtle mysterious tropical flowers of which they had never even heard. When he had come to Sally he had bowed so perfectly, and his heels had clicked most elegantly when he had said:

"To one so lovely, what can one say? Wait! Perhaps? Yes, yes! I would suggest—the hair. Gold, you know—it brings one out. There is a place—their work is most sophisticated! One moment—ah, I have it. It is the Atlanta beauty salon—you know it?"

Then Sally's mother had come sweeping into the room so Sally never did hear what else he might have said. But his suggestion about her hair had stuck.

As time went on Sergee attended her mother's club, drank a cup of coffee, and told Sally's mother and her friends how to manage their children and their husbands and their dogs and their leisure. Sally's mother thought him wonderful—so amazing—so far-sighted. Sally found it disconcerting.

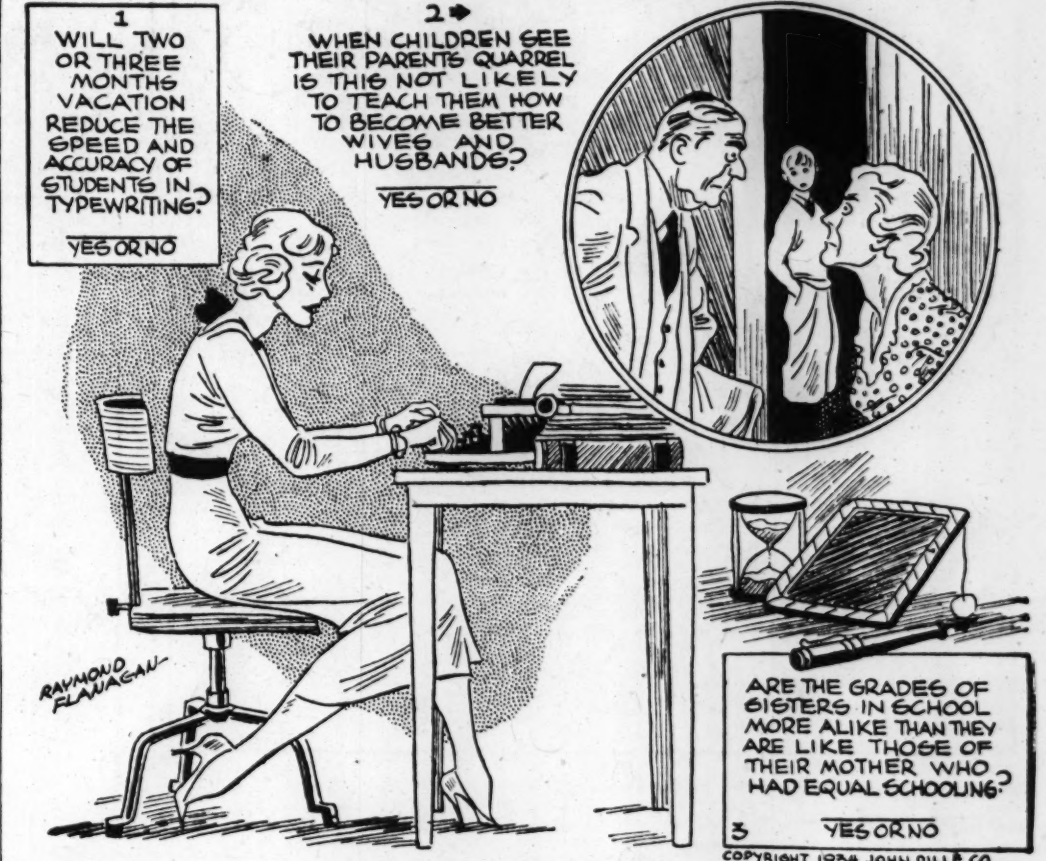

Sally closed her eyes. She could see Jimmy at the Bill gaps when she left that beauty parlor. Count Sergee had really given her life inspiration—for Sally was going blonde. Going blonde had its difficulties. It had meant that

See Whether His Opinions Agree With Your Own

1 WILL TWO OR THREE MONTHS VACATION REDUCE THE SPEED AND ACCURACY OF STUDENTS IN TYPEWRITING?
YES OR NO

2 WHEN CHILDREN SEE THEIR PARENTS QUARREL IS THIS NOT LIKELY TO TEACH THEM HOW TO BECOME BETTER WIVES AND HUSBANDS?
YES OR NO

3 ARE THE GRADES OF SISTERS IN SCHOOL MORE LIKE THOSE OF THEIR MOTHER WHO HAD EQUAL SCHOOLING?
YES OR NO

AUTHOR'S NOTE: These answers are given from the scientific point of view. Science puts the rights of organized society above the rights of individuals.

—Lowell J. Schroeder of the East High School, Sioux City, tested a class of 20 pupils on this point. He made careful records of their speed and accuracy at the close of school in June and again when they returned in September. They lost almost nothing, and in some cases, after a few hours practice, were better than ever. There is some evidence that habits such as golf, skating, tennis, etc., go on building themselves into the nervous system even after we cease practicing them.

—In his able discussion of this point in his book, "The Family, Its Organization and Disorganization," Dr. Ernest Mowrer shows that such scenes often lead the child to adopt the attitude of one parent against the other. A mother sees in her son the habits she disapproves in her husband and takes it out in punishing him so that he soon adopts the same attitude toward her that his father has. And so with girls. Many parents begin making unsatisfactory husbands and wives out of their children while they are still in the cradle. Our answer is, no.

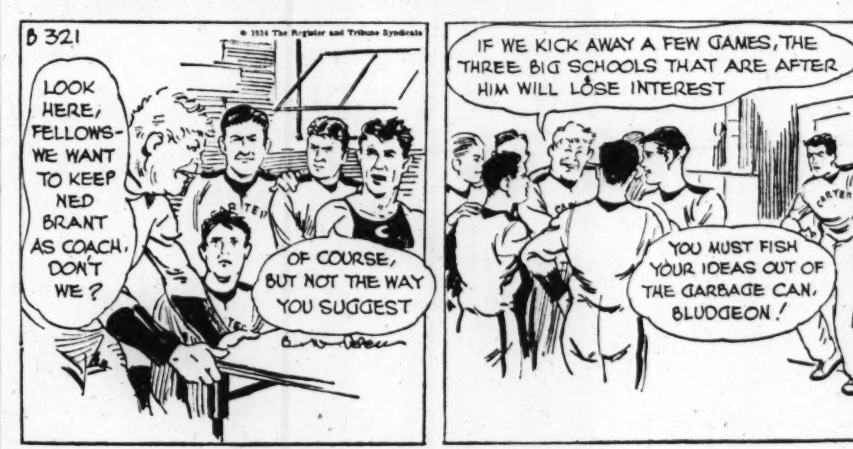

—Emily S. Dexter, psychologist of Agnes Scott College, Georgia, studied the grades of the mothers and daughters of two colleges and found there was a strong tendency for the sister to gain similar grades, but a much less tendency for these to resemble the grades obtained by their mothers. Intelligence tests given to mothers and daughters usually show a rather high relationship between the intelligence of the mothers and that of their daughters, but in school work probably interest and industry, not intelligence, cause most of these differences in school achievement.

—Count Sergee? Ah, he is my best, my most bee-oo-tiful friend! I know him too? He and I—we sometimes do business together. He was just here a moment ago. Count Sergee? Business? And Sergee had been very explicit about the Atlanta—Sally pushed back the curtain. There sat her mother—

Action Results From Mess and Chaos Murder of King—Budapest Government Notifies

By the Associated Press. BELGRADE, Dec. 4.—The Yugoslav Government announced today, has expelled all the 27,000 Hungarians living in the country. means the uprooting of a Hungarian element. It is stated authorities the expulsion will be process but will proceed. Some 2000 Hungarians have been deported. About 300 former Yugoslav citizens have found themselves in the country. These had Hungarian citizenship to becoming Yugoslav had thrown them out. Yugoslavia will not permit them. They are living in the Yugoslav frontier. Yugoslavia has accused before the League of Nations of harboring terrorists all the assassins of King Alexander and presumptions are made in this charge.

By the Associated Press. BUDAPEST, Dec. 4.—Hundreds of Hungarians yesterday announced the strained relations between the two countries. The official Hungarian agency said babies and firm persons were at forced to leave Yugoslavia. An American tourist countered the refugees. Yugoslavia, said one little tag tied to her coat with the address in Hungary on it. Ill-feeling has existed between Yugoslavia and Hungary since the assassination of King Alexander at Marseille. Subsequent Yugoslav Geneva that Hungary harbored the terrorists who plotted the assassination.

Refugees Tell of Experiences. At Szeged, the refugees and dejected, and hardship. Some were homeless; others were from some came to treatment by Yugoslav. Many said they were out warning and given their baggage and effects or withdrawal do banks. Most of their few possessions were landladies at the end of. Many said they had Yugoslavia 30 and 40 years but forgotten the name. As far 1400 of the dejected across the border more were expected. Among today's arrivals 60-year-old women lead year-old blind father. Barefoot girl had lost her in the exodus. A arrived with a child. There were many refugees being forced to live without heat, food, less fortunate, were compelled to go on. Among the refugees a 72-year-old Hungarian whose son is serving in army. Another woman was forced to leave her mother while the latter was the last sacrament. One aged man was giving his crippled wife. Croats and Bavs. The refugees included Croats and Bavs. Families have lived in 20 years. Several hundred of the excitement here is. In addition to the 20 representatives at Szeged commission is to be set up. Police have been mobilized.
